Truce Talks Bog Down To Complete Stalemate

Communists Insist On Inspections

POW Exchange Panel Able To Talk For Only 12 Minutes

MUNSAN, March 6 — (AP)—The deadlocked Korean truce talks have bogged down even further as Communist negotiators insist neutral teams including Russians be permitted to inspect secret equipment during an armistice.

Staff officers working on truce supervision wrangled fruitlessly for more than an hour, but the prisoner exchange subcommittee called it a day after only 12 minutes. Negotiators agreed there was no point in rehashing old arguments.

The deadlock has become so serious observers here said they believe only action at the top level could end the stalemate.

UN negotiators declined to speculate on how the deadlock might be broken. Some sources said the situation presumably is being studied carefully in Washington, and possibly in Moscow and Peiping.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN negotiator, was in Tokyo Wednesday, apparently for conferences with Gen. Ridgway.

• • •

THERE WAS no hint that a shift in the Allied position was in the offing.

Col. Don O. Darrow said the Communist demand for inspection of secret equipment might be "just another needling device." But he added:

"If they could get Russian teams down to look at our equipment, that would be highly desirable from their point of view."

The Allied proposal provides that neutral teams should make inspections to "pr[illegible] insure" that neither side is producing new equipment d[illegible] truce. However, the proposal specifies that the teams would not be allowed to check "secret designs or characteristics of any combat aircraft, armored vehicles, weapons or ammunition."

The Reds said the UN was merely trying to block a thorough inspection.

There has been no hint of compromise on the biggest stumbling blocks—Red insistence (1) Russia be a neutral supervisor and (2) they be allowed to repair North Korean airfields during a truce.

The prisoner exchange negotiations Thursday broke off abruptly because neither side had anything new to offer. The prisoner negotiations appear hopelessly deadlocked over the issue of voluntary repatriation.

AN AUTO which slammed through the closed gates at the West Shore Ferry terminal in Weehawken, N. J., as the ferry pulled away from the slip, carried one and possibly two persons to death. When the auto was hoisted from the Hudson river, it was empty. Later the body of an elderly woman was found floating face down in the river. An eyewitness said a man and a woman were in the car.

Donation Fund For Home Kids Growing Faster

A fund set up by Circleville firemen and Mayor Ed Amey for youngsters of Pickaway County Children's Home was growing faster Thursday.

The fund was being swelled by cash donations from county residents to replace personal items lost by the kiddies in a fire at the Home almost two weeks ago.

Firemen Thursday reported five more cash donations have been turned into the fund, a total of $50, along with some baskets and boxes of toys.

Personal cash donations taken in by firemen Wednesday and Thursday were $25 from Harold Hott, $10 from the Ashville Women's Society of Christian Service and $5 from Marvin Steeley.

In addition, an Ashville woman wishing to remain anonymous chipped in $10, while New Holland American Legion telephoned firemen to inform them that it is sending a $15 donation.

The fund was begun by the mayor and firemen when a garage-utility building at the home was destroyed by fire, wiping out many personal possessions of the youngsters.

Winfield Koch, Home superintendent, said the fire destroyed about $700 worth of personal items of the kiddies. The fund will have to grow much more to match that.

Stork Sets Mark

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—Preliminary figures indicate a record 3,833,000 births in the United States in 1951, the Public Health Service reports. The previous high was 3,818,000 in 1947.

Government Eases Its Curbs On Materials For New Building

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—The government has eased building controls on housing, commercial, highway and school projects.

The National Production Authority, dropping an earlier plan to limit the size of dwellings and restrict new homes to 1½ bathrooms each, Thursday issued:

1. A new, one-package housing order increasing by 500 pounds the steel which a home-builder may use without applying to NPA.

2. An order combining all other construction controls into a single document. It increases the tonnage of steel automatically allowed for commercial, school, and other smaller non-residential projects, as well as roads and highways.

3. An increase to 2,300 pounds of steel per dwelling unit in the amount which may be "self-authorized"—that is, used without application to NPA for a quota. The quantity is increased proportionately for two-family, three-family and four-family buildings.

4. A decrease of 25 pounds of copper to a total of 135 pounds per dwelling unit, for housing equipped with copper water piping systems. However, copper usage is increased where local building codes require that metal in underground connections.

Aluminum may be substituted for copper in wiring, one pound of aluminum may replace two pounds of copper.

For alterations or enlargement of existing dwellings, builders may use up to half the materials which are permitted for new dwellings.

The non-residential controls follow a similar pattern. Builders may self-authorize up to five tons of carbon steel for stores, office structures, schools and other non-industrial projects. Of this amount, two tons may be structural steel. Previously, only two tons in all could be self-authorized.

Forestry Experts Study Oak Wilt

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—The U. S. Forest Service has promised full cooperation in battling a mysterious blight that is killing oak trees in Southern Ohio.

Rep. Jenkins (R-Ohio) said forestry experts so far have been unable to determine the cause of "oak wilt" that has stricken trees in some 13 Southern Ohio counties and has been reported in about 20 other states.

Sales Decline

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—Total Ohio retail sales for January this year were down eight per cent from January, 1951, the Bureau of Business Research of Ohio State University reported Thursday.

Mercy Train Taking Aid To Quake Areas

TOKYO, March 6—(AP)—An eight-car mercy train manned by soldiers of the U. S. First Cavalry Division headed for the quake-struck city of Kushiro on the southeast coast of Hokkaido Thursday.

The train was loaded with Army C-rations and blankets. It carried radio and medical teams to aid victims of Tuesday's earthquake and tidal waves.

It will be Friday night before the relief train completes the round-about trip from Sapporo to Kushiro Quake shattered bridges and rail lines knocked out the direct 150-mile route.

Aboard the train were six Army weasels to ferry relief supplies to hard-hit communities over snow or water.

An Air Force field unit called for an air drop of 600 blankets and field rations for 1,871 homeless in the village of Kiritappu, some 25 miles south of the Russian-held Kuriles. The field unit said 309 homes were destroyed and three persons killed in the village.

Kiritappu, on the east coast, and the inland village of Urahoro, apparently were the hardest hit on Japan's northern Hokkaido Island.

He Waits As She Serves In War

SEATTLE, March 6 — (AP)—An Indianapolis doctor and his bride reversed the usual dockside reception routine Wednesday as the military transport LaGuardia arrived from the Far East.

This time the husband, Dr. Charles Williams, waited on the dock for his wife. Mrs. Williams had returned from 14 months of Navy nursing duty in Japan.

Truman Asks $7.9 Billion In New Foreign Aid Fund

TRUMAN GIVEN CHALLENGE

Political Talks Echoing Over New Hampshire

CONCORD, March 6—(AP)—Political oratory is echoing across New Hampshire's snow-covered hills in hand-shaking, meet the people, answer the questions campaigns.

The Republican and Democratic races each appeared to be a contest between a man working hard for the presidency and one who hasn't said he wants the job.

The Republican choice seemed narrowed to Senator Robert A. Taft, who arrived in New Hampshire Thursday in quest of the nomination, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who says he won't seek it but will accept if nominated.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee was fighting what he calls an uphill battle against supporters of President Truman. The President has not announced whether he wants another term.

The results of the New Hampshire primary election next Tuesday are not binding on convention delegates. But since it is the first presidential primary of the year, great psychological value is attached to its outcome.

Samplings of opinion in eight communities brought only two positive answers—in Hanover, predominantly Eisenhower, in Milford, predominantly Taft. The other six said sentiment seemed to be evenly divided.

One experienced observer, in Lancaster, a northern town, said: "I've never seen an election like this one. Usually, at this point, you can spot the trend, definitely. This time, there's just no telling."

The latest happenings in the national campaign:

DEMOCRATIC

1. Rep. Bryson (D-SC) visited Truman Wednesday and said the President told him he would know what to do about running "if he were sure Taft would not get the Republican nomination and would not get elected if he got it."

Sen. Brewster (R-Me), a Taft backer, called this statement "an obvious attempt" by the President to influence the New Hampshire primary.

"I say it's time to call his bluff," Brewster added. "Let him run again. Let him go out and defend the record as a candidate."

2. Democratic national committee officials said they are leaving it to state leaders whether to enter Truman's name in their presidential primaries. But to avoid any embarrassments, they are discouraging entry of the president's name in contests where his consent is required.

3. Kefauver conducted a slow motion type of campaign in New Hampshire, selling himself in a folksy sort of way. Truman backers expressed confidence the President would get all eight Democratic delegates, Kefauver none.

REPUBLICAN

1. Paul G. Hoffman, former economic cooperation administrator, told a Durham, N. H., audience that Eisenhower is the only GOP candidate "who can win the independent vote and break the single 'Solid South'."

2. Taft, again protesting the alphabetical listing which places him last on the ballot, opens his three-day drive in Manchester. He has 21 appearances scheduled.

3. The New Jersey Taft-for-President Committee announced the Ohioan will be entered in the state's primary April 15.

4. Gov. Earl Warren of California said he will enter Oregon's May 16 Republican primary.

5. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's withdrawal of his name from the Pennsylvania primary was upheld by the Dauphin County court.

Lad, 13, Admits Slaying Classmate

SMITHTOWN, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—A 13-year-old boy was held in jail today, accused of killing a pretty classmate when she resisted his advances.

Harold Lorentson, an honor student, was charged with first degree murder Wednesday night. District Attorney Linsay R. Henry said the boy admitted he killed 12-year-old Lyde Kitchner whose body was found in a wooded area last Nov. 29.

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The 1952 Buckeye Boys' State, the American Legion's annual school in government for selected high school juniors, will be held June 6-15 at Camp Perry on Lake Erie.

Eaton Gives $30,000 To Anti-Taft Fund

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—Cleveland financier Cyrus Eaton said Thursday he gave $30,000 to the 1950 campaign against reelection of Senator Robert A. Taft.

Eaton told the Senate Elections Subcommittee he gave much of this sum through employes of Otis and Co., a Cleveland financial house in which he said he and his family hold about 50 per cent of the stock.

The subcommittee is looking into the Ohio election of 1950 in which Republican Taft defeated Democrat Joseph T. Ferguson for a Senate seat.

Senator Hendrickson (R-NJ) asked Eaton if his total contributions would total $40,000.

Eaton said the correct amount was $30,000. He added:

"If one does not desire to advertise himself as a donor, he perhaps asks somebody else to do it for him."

Eaton denied an assertion he used this method of contributing to avoid any limits fixed by law.

There is, he said, "absolutely no limit" under Ohio law to contributions that can be made in state campaigns.

Mother Hangs 3 Children And Self

ROSLYN HEIGHTS, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—A Long Island mother hanged her three small children with their cowboy belts Wednesday and then took her own life the same way.

Neighbors found the bodies hanging from the bed posts in their bedrooms. The victims were Mrs. Mary G. Klem, 30, and Frank Jr., 6, Richard, 4, and Margaret, 13 months. The father, Frank J. Klem, a draftsman, was working in New York City when the tragedy occurred.

Morris Says He Won't Quit Post

Corruption Sleuth Optimistic; McGrath Faces Ire Of Solons

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—Newbold Morris, government corruption investigator, conferred for 15 minutes with President Truman Thursday and made it clear afterwards he is going to stay on the job despite the way he said he has been "socked" in Washington.

When he came out of the White House, Morris was asked by reporters whether he planned to resign. "No," he said.

Morris expressed the view that he has been "socked" when a reporter asked how he compared his old foe, Tammany Hall, with his treatment in Washington.

"Up in New York, it's sort of like a pillow fight," Morris said. "Down here they really sock you."

Morris gained wide reputation as an advocate of clean government in political scraps with the Tammany Hall organization in New York. He is a Republican.

Morris refused to say directly what he had discussed with President Truman.

• • •

THERE WAS a possible indication, however, they had discussed the income questionnaire Morris is sending out to 25,000 higher bracket federal job holders.

Under questioning as to whether he would send out the questionnaire, Morris patted his briefcase, and said, "they are in here."

Asked if he would send one to Attorney General McGrath, he replied McGrath would get questionnaire "No. 1."

Meanwhile, House investigators demanded an on-the-spot explanation from McGrath for Justice Department refusal to open up its records to them.

The situation contained the elements of a new and explosive contest between the Truman administration and a committee of Congress digging into charges of corruption in government.

Rep. Chelf (D-Ky), chairman of a special judiciary subcommittee investigating McGrath, threatened to use the subpoena powers of Congress or go directly to the President if McGrath persisted his refusal to comply.

Assistant Attorney General Joseph C. Duggan, acting for McGrath, contended the committee was exceeding its powers.

Moreover, Duggan indicated, the committee was asking that Justice process a half-million cases—a job which would take up all the department's time, leave it doing little else.

And it appeared that Corruption Sleuth Morris, himself, soon would testify before a Senate probe panel.

• • •

THE SENATORS want to know more about his role as a lawyer for Chinese Nationalists hauling goods to Communist China.

Houston H. Wasson, Morris' law partner, was called back to give the Senate Investigations Subcommittee more details of the traffic.

Wasson testified Wednesday he and Morris were lawyers—but not chief counsel—for China Trading and Industrial Development Corp., a Chinese Nationalist firm which, he said, delivered oil to the Reds almost up to the start of the Korean fighting, and other goods until the war [illegible] six months old.

Morris has said he wants to testify in reply to "innuendos" about his connection with the tanker deals.

Reds Ridicule Dominican Claim

MOSCOW, March 6—(AP)—The Soviet press has ridiculed assertions by the Dominican Republic that Russian submarines have been sighted off the Caribbean island's coast.

The U. S. Navy first discounted the reports but later ordered Rear Admiral Marshall R. Grier, commander of the 10th Naval District at San Juan, Puerto Rico, to investigate. The Dominican defense minister said Tuesday the vessels were identified as Russian by a type of light peculiar to Soviet submarines.

'Flu Medicine' Tests 80 Proof

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., March 6 —(AP)—A 39-year-old factory workers' efforts to combat the influenza epidemic didn't get much sympathy from police.

Jesse Carter said he was making "flu medicine" in the copper tubing and 50-gallon wooden drums in his cabin. Two gallons of the "medicine" tested 80 proof. They booked Carter for possessing untaxed liquor.

166 Ohio Slots Are Grabbed In FBI Raids

CLEVELAND, March 6 — (AP)—Slot machines—166 shiny new ones worth an estimated $33,311—were stacked in a warehouse here Thursday while authorities sought a federal court order to destroy them.

FBI agents grabbed the machines Wednesday in raids that coincided with similar seizures of nearly 1,200 slots in Illinois, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

In Ohio, 157 of the machines were taken in Akron, four in Columbiana, three in Leetonia and two in Wadsworth.

The slots, many still in their original cartons, were seized because they had not been registered with the Justice Department as required by a law Congress passed 14 months ago.

U. S. Attorney John J. Kane said no arrests were made and no criminal action was planned against the persons from whom the slots were taken. Elsewhere in the national drive, arrests were made because there was evidence that the slots had been shipped across state lines in violation of another federal law.

Paul J. Shine, FBI agent in charge here, who set the value of the confiscated slots at $33,311, said the devices were of a new type where the player writes down a number from 1 to 1,000 on a slip of paper in a slot at the top of the machine. He puts in a coin, spins a numbered reel, and if the reel stops at his number he is paid off.

Vice Law Is OKd

ROME, March 6—(AP)—A bill to shut down Italian houses of prostitution pending for three years—was passed Wednesday night by the Senate without a single vote against it.

Civilization Said Facing Red Threat

Withdrawal To West Hemisphere Rapped In Chief's Address

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—President Truman Thursday asked Congress to vote every penny of his $7.9 billion new global foreign aid program to meet a Soviet threat against the "survival of civilization."

Thursday night the President will go on every major radio and television network at 10:30 to carry his plea to the people.

Talk of withdrawing to the Western Hemisphere "has momentary seductiveness," the President said, "because it would seem to relieve us of the contributions we are now making to collective defense."

But he said the adoption of such a policy would be a "mandate for national suicide."

The President said the money he is asking for would be spent to send arms to America's allies in Europe, to build up Allied nations in the Middle and Far East, to help European countries manufacture their own arms, and to raise the living standards of Red-threatened nations in Africa and Asia.

• • •

NOT A SINGLE dollar should be cut out of the proposed program, the President asserted, lest this nation be guilty of a "false economy" of "too little and too late."

In a special 7,500 word message, Mr. Truman anticipated the attacks of critics and economy advocates. He built his argument for carrying on the mutual security program around four basic reasons, which he set forth in these words

"First, the plain fact is that we cannot achieve lasting security for ourselves except in association with other nations.

"Second, the funds provided by the United States under the mutual security program are essential to the success of the common efforts we are making with other free nations for peace.

"Third, the funds thus invested by the United States will yield far larger returns, in terms of our own security, than if the same amount were used for our own defense establishment.

"Fourth, the cost of the mutual security program, together with the much larger costs of our military services and other defense measures, are well within our economic capacity."

In his message the President repeatedly emphasized an American role of leadership of the "free world." He declared "we must show the world that we can meet any crisis, and that temporary frustration will not drive us to panicky aggression or to ignominious retreat."

Flooded Farmer Loses Law Suit

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday refused to review the case of Warren Rieser, who owns 58 acres of land in Butler County.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has tracks on an embankment between Rieser's land and the old Miami and Erie Canal. In the 1937 flood, the canal bank gave way, and water ran against the railroad embankment.

The railroad installed eight steel tubes through its embankment, permitting the water to flow onto Rieser's land. Rieser sued the railroad but the appellate court held the railroad cannot be compelled to shield Rieser's land from the natural flow of water.

PARIS, March 6—(AP)—Antoine Pinay was confirmed as premier of France Thursday by a vote of 324-206, nine more than the bare minimum needed.

Here's A Purr-O-Graph Or Two About Cats, Dogs, Hens

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Animal stories made human interest news Wednesday. If you don't believe it, read about:

A chicken with red underwear, a dog who took a nip in the line of duty, a seeing-eye canine back to work after an eye operation, a happy-time tail in court, the contested will featuring Teddie the terrier and the latest on the controversial case of the baked cat.

In a Manhattan hotel, Black Minnie the hen laid them in the aisles, with her red-flannel, rubber-lined pants, saucy suspenders, and a vivacious vest.

Minnie mooched into New York with her mistress, Mrs. Eva Anderson of Harwick, Pa. By outfitting Minnie, Mrs. Anderson won a Pittsburgh television station contest for the "most unusual object made on a sewing machine at home." Did she win on a fowl?

In Port Washington, N. Y., "Smoky," Dalmatian fire company mascot and watchdog, took matters into his own teeth—and was slapped in quarantine and faces a departmental trial.

Smoky nipped a lady as she walked between fire trucks being washed on the firehouse runway. Smoky is in the "pokey" but a fire company spokesman insists:

"You can't blame him. He has a very strong sense of duty."

In New York City, a happy reunion ensued between sightless Mrs. Elba Velez and Pavia, her seeing-eye dog. The dog had become a victim of cataracts and was slowly losing its sight. It had to be operated on last month.

Wednesday, with the surgery successful. Mrs. Velez and Pavia took their first walk together in weeks. Said Mrs. Velez: "I needn't say how happy I am."

In Dallas, "Sam" the hound dog took the witness stand. When George Kelly walked into the courtroom, Sam waved his tail like mad. Ruled the judge: "This hound dog belongs to you, George."

Separated from his master, Sam had been bought by another man who said he would give up the dog only "if he recognizes George."

In New Brunswick, N. J., "Teddie" the terrier had his legal troubles, too. Teddie's master, the late Russell S. Scott, left him a $5,000 trust fund. A first cousin of Scott's is trying to break the will, claiming he is the sole heir.

In Minerva, Ohio, they're still discussing the calico cat — two years after she reportedly spent 36 hours in a sealed, fiery-hot brick kiln. The cat isn't quite as good as new, but she still is stalking around.

Two years ago, some say, the pussy strolled into a brick kiln, which then was sealed and heated slowly to 920 degrees. A day and a half later, the kiln door was opened and kitty staggered out—minus two inches of tail and with seared ears, fur and feet.

The story of the fireproof feline has stirred up some hot arguments. Some folks point with pride to Tabby's escapade and survival.

But Walter R. Krill, dean of the Ohio State University veterinary college, declared Wednesday:

"It's impossible."

Sen. Brewster (R-Me), a Taft backer, called this statement "an obvious attempt" by the President to influence the New Hampshire primary.

"I say it's time to call his bluff," Brewster added. "Let him run again. Let him go out and defend the record as a candidate."

2. Democratic national committee officials said they are leaving it to state leaders whether to enter Truman's name in their presidential primaries. But to avoid any embarrassments, they are discouraging entry of the president's name in contests where his consent is required.

3. Kefauver conducted a slow motion type of campaign in New Hampshire, selling himself in a folksy sort of way. Truman backers expressed confidence the President would get all eight Democratic delegates, Kefauver none.

REPUBLICAN

1. Paul G. Hoffman, former economic cooperation administrator, told a Durham, N. H., audience that Eisenhower is the only GOP candidate "who can win the independent vote and break the single 'Solid South'."

2. Taft, again protesting the alphabetical listing which places him last on the ballot, opens his three-day drive in Manchester. He has 21 appearances scheduled.

3. The New Jersey Taft-for-President Committee announced the Ohioan will be entered in the state's primary April 15.

4. Gov. Earl Warren of California said he will enter Oregon's May 16 Republican primary.

5. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's withdrawal of his name from the Pennsylvania primary was upheld by the Dauphin County court.

SMITHTOWN, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—A 13-year-old boy was held in jail today, accused of killing a pretty classmate when she resisted his advances.

Harold Lorentson, an honor student, was charged with first degree murder Wednesday night. District Attorney Linsay R. Henry said the boy admitted he killed 12-year-old Lyde Kitchner whose body was found in a wooded area last Nov. 29.

Eaton Gives $30,000 To Anti-Taft Fund

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—Cleveland financier Cyrus Eaton said Thursday he gave $30,000 to the 1950 campaign against reelection of Senator Robert A. Taft.

Eaton told the Senate Elections Subcommittee he gave much of this sum through employes of Otis and Co., a Cleveland financial house in which he said he and his family hold about 50 per cent of the stock.

The subcommittee is looking into the Ohio election of 1950 in which Republican Taft defeated Democrat Joseph T. Ferguson for a Senate seat.

Senator Hendrickson (R-NJ) asked Eaton if his total contributions would total $40,000.

Eaton said the correct amount was $30,000. He added:

"If one does not desire to advertise himself as a donor, he perhaps asks somebody else to do it for him."

Eaton denied an assertion he used this method of contributing to avoid any limits fixed by law.

There is, he said, "absolutely no limit" under Ohio law to contributions that can be made in state campaigns.

Mother Hangs 3 Children And Self

ROSLYN HEIGHTS, N. Y., March 6—(AP)—A Long Island mother hanged her three small children with their cowboy belts Wednesday and then took her own life the same way.

Neighbors found the bodies hanging from the bed posts in their bedrooms. The victims were Mrs. Mary G. Klem, 30, and Frank Jr., 6, Richard, 4, and Margaret, 13 months. The father, Frank J. Klem, a draftsman, was working in New York City when the tragedy occurred.

Morris Says He Won't Quit Post

Corruption Sleuth Optimistic; McGrath Faces Ire Of Solons

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—Newbold Morris, government corruption investigator, conferred for 15 minutes with President Truman Thursday and made it clear afterwards he is going to stay on the job despite the way he said he has been "socked" in Washington.

When he came out of the White House, Morris was asked by reporters whether he planned to resign. "No," he said.

Morris expressed the view that he has been "socked" when a reporter asked how he compared his old foe, Tammany Hall, with his treatment in Washington.

"Up in New York, it's sort of like a pillow fight," Morris said. "Down here they really sock you."

Morris gained wide reputation as an advocate of clean government in political scraps with the Tammany Hall organization in New York. He is a Republican.

Morris refused to say directly what he had discussed with President Truman.

• • •

THERE WAS a possible indication, however, they had discussed the income questionnaire Morris is sending out to 25,000 higher bracket federal job holders.

Under questioning as to whether he would send out the questionnaire, Morris patted his briefcase, and said, "they are in here."

Asked if he would send one to Attorney General McGrath, he replied McGrath would get questionnaire "No. 1."

Meanwhile, House investigators demanded an on-the-spot explanation from McGrath for Justice Department refusal to open up its records to them.

The situation contained the elements of a new and explosive contest between the Truman administration and a committee of Congress digging into charges of corruption in government.

Rep. Chelf (D-Ky), chairman of a special judiciary subcommittee investigating McGrath, threatened to use the subpoena powers of Congress or go directly to the President if McGrath persisted his refusal to comply.

Assistant Attorney General Joseph C. Duggan, acting for McGrath, contended the committee was exceeding its powers.

Moreover, Duggan indicated, the committee was asking that Justice process a half-million cases—a job which would take up all the department's time, leave it doing little else.

And it appeared that Corruption Sleuth Morris, himself, soon would testify before a Senate probe panel.

THE SENATORS want to know more about his role as a lawyer for Chinese Nationalists hauling goods to Communist China.

Houston H. Wasson, Morris' law partner, was called back to give the Senate Investigations Subcommittee more details of the traffic.

Wasson testified Wednesday he and Morris were lawyers—but not chief counsel—for China Trading and Industrial Development Corp., a Chinese Nationalist firm which, he said, delivered oil to the Reds almost up to the start of the Korean fighting, and other goods until the war [illegible] six months old.

Morris has said he wants to testify in reply to "innuendos" about his connection with the tanker deals.

Reds Ridicule Dominican Claim

MOSCOW, March 6—(AP)—The Soviet press has ridiculed assertions by the Dominican Republic that Russian submarines have been sighted off the Caribbean island's coast.

The U. S. Navy first discounted the reports but later ordered Rear Admiral Marshall R. Grier, commander of the 10th Naval District at San Juan, Puerto Rico, to investigate. The Dominican defense minister said Tuesday the vessels were identified as Russian by a type of light peculiar to Soviet submarines.

'Flu Medicine' Tests 80 Proof

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., March 6 —(AP)—A 39-year-old factory workers' efforts to combat the influenza epidemic didn't get much sympathy from police.

Jesse Carter said he was making "flu medicine" in the copper tubing and 50-gallon wooden drums in his cabin. Two gallons of the "medicine" tested 80 proof. They booked Carter for possessing untaxed liquor.

166 Ohio Slots Are Grabbed In FBI Raids

CLEVELAND, March 6 — (AP)—Slot machines—166 shiny new ones worth an estimated $33,311—were stacked in a warehouse here Thursday while authorities sought a federal court order to destroy them.

FBI agents grabbed the machines Wednesday in raids that coincided with similar seizures of nearly 1,200 slots in Illinois, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

In Ohio, 157 of the machines were taken in Akron, four in Columbiana, three in Leetonia and two in Wadsworth.

The slots, many still in their original cartons, were seized because they had not been registered with the Justice Department as required by a law Congress passed 14 months ago.

U. S. Attorney John J. Kane said no arrests were made and no criminal action was planned against the persons from whom the slots were taken. Elsewhere in the national drive, arrests were made because there was evidence that the slots had been shipped across state lines in violation of another federal law.

Paul J. Shine, FBI agent in charge here, who set the value of the confiscated slots at $33,311, said the devices were of a new type where the player writes down a number from 1 to 1,000 on a slip of paper in a slot at the top of the machine. He puts in a coin, spins a numbered reel, and if the reel stops at his number he is paid off.

Civilization Said Facing Red Threat

Withdrawal To West Hemisphere Rapped In Chief's Address

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—President Truman Thursday asked Congress to vote every penny of his $7.9 billion new global foreign aid program to meet a Soviet threat against the "survival of civilization."

Thursday night the President will go on every major radio and television network at 10:30 to carry his plea to the people.

Talk of withdrawing to the Western Hemisphere "has momentary seductiveness," the President said, "because it would seem to relieve us of the contributions we are now making to collective defense."

But he said the adoption of such a policy would be a "mandate for national suicide."

The President said the money he is asking for would be spent to send arms to America's allies in Europe, to build up Allied nations in the Middle and Far East, to help European countries manufacture their own arms, and to raise the living standards of Red-threatened nations in Africa and Asia.

• • •

NOT A SINGLE dollar should be cut out of the proposed program, the President asserted, lest this nation be guilty of a "false economy" of "too little and too late."

In a special 7,500 word message, Mr. Truman anticipated the attacks of critics and economy advocates. He built his argument for carrying on the mutual security program around four basic reasons, which he set forth in these words

"First, the plain fact is that we cannot achieve lasting security for ourselves except in association with other nations.

"Second, the funds provided by the United States under the mutual security program are essential to the success of the common efforts we are making with other free nations for peace.

"Third, the funds thus invested by the United States will yield far larger returns, in terms of our own security, than if the same amount were used for our own defense establishment.

"Fourth, the cost of the mutual security program, together with the much larger costs of our military services and other defense measures, are well within our economic capacity."

In his message the President repeatedly emphasized an American role of leadership of the "free world." He declared "we must show the world that we can meet any crisis, and that temporary frustration will not drive us to panicky aggression or to ignominious retreat."

Flooded Farmer Loses Law Suit

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday refused to review the case of Warren Rieser, who owns 58 acres of land in Butler County.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has tracks on an embankment between Rieser's land and the old Miami and Erie Canal. In the 1937 flood, the canal bank gave way, and water ran against the railroad embankment.

The railroad installed eight steel tubes through its embankment, permitting the water to flow onto Rieser's land. Rieser sued the railroad but the appellate court held the railroad cannot be compelled to shield Rieser's land from the natural flow of water.

Here's A Purr-O-Graph Or Two About Cats, Dogs, Hens

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Animal stories made human interest news Wednesday. If you don't believe it, read about:

A chicken with red underwear, a dog who took a nip in the line of duty, a seeing-eye canine back to work after an eye operation, a happy-time tail in court, the contested will featuring Teddie the terrier and the latest on the controversial case of the baked cat.

In a Manhattan hotel, Black Minnie the hen laid them in the aisles, with her red-flannel, rubber-lined pants, saucy suspenders, and a vivacious vest.

Minnie mooched into New York with her mistress, Mrs. Eva Anderson of Harwick, Pa. By outfitting Minnie, Mrs. Anderson won a Pittsburgh television station contest for the "most unusual object made on a sewing machine at home." Did she win on a fowl?

In Port Washington, N. Y., "Smoky," Dalmatian fire company mascot and watchdog, took matters into his own teeth—and was slapped in quarantine and faces a departmental trial.

Smoky nipped a lady as she walked between fire trucks being washed on the firehouse runway. Smoky is in the "pokey" but a fire company spokesman insists:

"You can't blame him. He has a very strong sense of duty."

In New York City, a happy reunion ensued between sightless Mrs. Elba Velez and Pavia, her seeing-eye dog. The dog had become a victim of cataracts and was slowly losing its sight. It had to be operated on last month.

Wednesday, with the surgery successful. Mrs. Velez and Pavia took their first walk together in weeks. Said Mrs. Velez: "I needn't say how happy I am."

In Dallas, "Sam" the hound dog took the witness stand. When George Kelly walked into the courtroom, Sam waved his tail like mad. Ruled the judge: "This hound dog belongs to you, George."

Separated from his master, Sam had been bought by another man who said he would give up the dog only "if he recognizes George."

In New Brunswick, N. J., "Teddie" the terrier had his legal troubles, too. Teddie's master, the late Russell S. Scott, left him a $5,000 trust fund. A first cousin of Scott's is trying to break the will, claiming he is the sole heir.

In Minerva, Ohio, they're still discussing the calico cat — two years after she reportedly spent 36 hours in a sealed, fiery-hot brick kiln. The cat isn't quite as good as new, but she still is stalking around.

Two years ago, some say, the pussy strolled into a brick kiln, which then was sealed and heated slowly to 920 degrees. A day and a half later, the kiln door was opened and kitty staggered out—minus two inches of tail and with seared ears, fur and feet.

The story of the fireproof feline has stirred up some hot arguments. Some folks point with pride to Tabby's escapade and survival.

But Walter R. Krill, dean of the Ohio State University veterinary college, declared Wednesday:

"It's impossible."

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—You can always kill a chicken, without leaving tell-tale feathers around, by shoving it into a cooler till it freezes to death.

Congress has a special deep freeze of its own on hand when it wants to avoid an embarrassing situation, like a vote on UMT.

It simply sends the bill back to a committee for further study even though that same committee already had knocked itself out studying the bill.

That's what the House did this week with a bill on Universal Military Training. And, as usual, rigor mortis was detected immediately.

The subject of UMT is, and has been, a hot potato. President Truman, Gen. Eisenhower, and the veterans and service organizations all favored it.

* * *

AGAINST IT were the AFL, CIO, farm groups, some educators, spokesmen for several churches, and a lot of parents. Particularly a lot of parents.

So the House Armed Services Committee knew it was walking on eggs when early this year it began hearings on a UMT bill.

It held hearings 19 days and listed to 70 witnesses, for an against. It prodded, probed, and looked under the bed.

Finally, by a vote of 27 to 7, the committee members decided we should go ahead with UMT and draw up a bill to do just that.

This bill would have permitted the government to start a small experimental UMT program next fall, taking 18-year-olds for six months' training.

Then the committee sent the full bill to the House for a vote. This proved to be embarrassing.

By coincidence, the UMT program would start next fall just about the time members of Congress were up for reelection.

And a great many parents, who are also voters, had written a great many letters to their congressmen, against UMT.

Speaker Sam Rayburn made a special plea: "Do we not have the fortitude—do we not have the courage—to meet this issue today?"

Apparently the House didn't because it then voted to send the bill back to the committee, thus avoiding the final tell-tale vote.

Since UMT apparently is a dead chicken in the House cooler, the Senate isn't likely to stick its neck out needlessly. As Winston Churchill might have said: "Some chicken, some neck."

Pickaway County Shows Disfavor Of UMT Plan

Pickaway County definitely is opposed to the proposed Universal Military Training program which met its defeat in Congress this week.

In a recent survey of local taxpayers on the question of UMT, local opinion showed 185 persons in favor of the bill while 383 were against the program.

In an overall survey of the other counties in the Congressional district, however, most persons were found in favor of the UMT setup. —As is his ustom on questions of great interest to his onstituents, Congressman James G. Polk of the Sixth Ohio District has conducted a public opinion poll of the district on the question of Universal Military Training.

Last year questionnaires were mailed from his office to residents of Adams, Brown, Clermont, Highland, Pike and Scioto Counties. The first question on this questionnaire was "Do you favor Universal Military Training?"

Since the Ohio General Assembly has added Fayette, Pickaway and Ross counties to the Sixth District, the congressman has recently mailed out questionnaires to residents of these three counties. The first question asked was "Would you vote for Universal Military Training?"

As a result of this survey 4,703 expressed a view favoring Universal Military Training and 2,729 stated they were opposed.

The tabulation of votes on this question from the nine counties is as follows:

	Yes	No
Adams	424	132
Brown	319	143
Clermont	696	248
Fayette	251	424
Highland	603	258
Pickaway	185	383
Pike	223	68
Ross	581	714
Scioto	1,421	359
Total	4,703	2,729

The congressman announced in Washington that, in view of the answers he has received on the question, he would stand for the bill.

Polk maintained this stand Wednesday when he voted against a motion to return the bill to committee, thus bringing probable death to the measure—at least until after election.

Fayette Youths Arrested Here For Corn Theft

Three Fayette county youths were arrested Wednesday by Pickaway County authorities for allegedly stealing $20 worth of corn.

The trio, identified as Ray Colburn, 19, Joe Williams, 16, and Pearl Webb, 17, all of near Waterloo, said they stole the corn from Fayette County.

Local authorities were called to investigate Wednesday when sacks of corn were discovered under Hanawalt Bridge, near Crownover's Mill.

Deputy Jim Diltz said he sought the trio of youths after persons in the area reported they had seen the lads near the bridge.

In questioning, the youths first said they had stolen the corn in Pickaway County. On later questioning by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, however, they admitted they stole it from the Earl Templeton farm, Fayette County.

The boys admitted stealing 10 bags of ear corn, valued at about $20. When the corn was discovered, however, hogs had ripped open the sacks and only about a dozen ears of corn remained.

Local authorities turned the youths over to Fayette County authorities early Thursday for prosecution.

Kindness Pays Well For Banker

TORONTO, March 6—(AP)—Alvin Poser was a dirty, ragged, ragpicker who lived alone in squalor. He used to bring money into a trust company for deposit and some of the employes there tried to avoid waiting on him.

So he kept coming to George Buchanan, an executive of the company, who believed in "treating every customer as best I know how." The old ragpicker, aged 70, died 11 days ago. He left $25,000—$15,000 of it to Buchanan, the will disclosed.

Planning Is More Important Than Planting

Planning is as important as planting in the home vegetable garden—but planning comes first.

Although gardeners have to wait for the proper weather to plant, they can plan right now, Larry Best, county extension agent, said today, "The important point is to plan before you plant."

Plans are especially important to the gardener who has a small plot of ground. Good plans will mean continuous harvest of a variety of vegetables and extra quantity for winter storage.

Check with the family for their likes and dislikes and consider the space available before you decide on the vegetables to plant. Your plan might include: two leafy, green or yellow vegetables such as kale, spinach or beet greens; two pod vegetables such as peas or beans; two root crops such as carrots, beets or turnips; tomatoes and cabbage, and such additional vegetables as family tastes indicate.

* * *

ADDITIONAL POINTS to remember are: early maturing crops should be planted next to each other. Sweet corn will pollinate better when two or more rows are planted together.

On sloping soil where washing is a problem, rows always should be planted across the slope. Tall growing crops should be planted where they will not shade or interfere with growth of smaller crops.

Best advised gardeners not to plant too much of any one crop at one time. Best place for perennial vegetables such as rhubarb and asparagus is at one side of the garden. There they will not interfere with seedbed preparation. Allow enough space between rows and plants for good growth and easy care.

U.S. Military Diary Being Used By Reds

WASHINGTON, March 6 —(AP)— Parts of a diary by the former military attache to the American embassy in Moscow have been obtained by the Communists, a U. S. Army spokesman disclosed Thursday.

Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn, deputy chief of information, said Iron Curtain sources have been circulating extracts from the diary as part of their propaganda drive against the U. S.

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, its author, was reassigned to duty in Washington in January when the Army found out about the extracts, Dorn said.

The Washington Post said photostats of the extracts are reproduced in a book recently published in Communist - controlled East Germany. It said the book is "aimed at convincing Germans that America is a 'war-monger.'"

The Post said the book quoted one note in the diary as declaring:

"Although the military services are primarily concerned with military weapons and methods, we must understand that this war is total war and is fought with all weapons. We must learn that in this war it is fair to hit below the belt."

Unwanted Guest Finds Lodgings At Smith Home

Mrs. Lloyd Smith, 575 Renick avenue, has a very unusual problem these days. An unwanted guest moved into a suit case left on the Smith front porch for an airing.

Mrs. Smith, a German war bride, and her husband are moving soon to Columbus where Mr. Smith is employed.

In preparation for the move Mrs. Smith got her suitcases out and put them on the front porch to air. When night came the suitcases were forgotten about.

Next morning, when Mrs. Smith returned to bring them into the house, she found that a skunk had solved its housing problem by taking up its residence in one of the suircases.

Mrs. Smith's special problem these days is still airing suitcases for, although she has tried just about everything, the odor lingers on.

Dental Society Raps Colleague For Interview

CLEVELAND, March 6—(AP)—The Cleveland Dental Society has suspended a member for giving a newspaper interview on hypnosis in dentistry without first clearing it with the society.

The interview described how Dr. Arthur Kuhner hypnotizes a patient, then drills or pulls teeth painlessly.

Dr. Walter H. Maurer, chairman of the dental society's publicity committee, said Dr. Kuhner was one of a group of about 12 dentists working with hypnosis, and that all of them had agreed to clear all publicity through the society committee.

Clearance was not obtained by Dr. Kuhner when he gave an illustrated story on hypnotic dentistry to the Cleveland Press, Dr. Maurer asserted. The Press, which published the story Feb. 18, said Dr. Kuhner did not solicit the publicity.

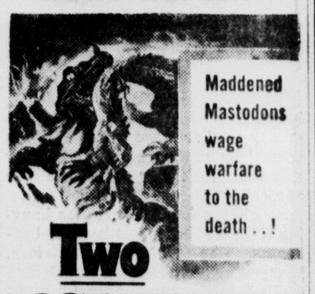

The dental society did not question the accuracy of the article, Dr. Maurer said, but "our objection is that it glamourized Dr. Kuhner, who was only one of a group. Our object is to see that only the right kind of information about dentistry gets into the newspapers."

WASHINGTON, March 6 — (AP)—You can always kill a chicken, without leaving tell-tale feathers around, by shoving it into a cooler till it freezes to death.

Congress has a special deep freeze of its own on hand when it wants to avoid an embarrassing situation, like a vote on UMT.

It simply sends the bill back to a committee for further study even though that same committee already had knocked itself out studying the bill.

That's what the House did this week with a bill on Universal Military Training. And, as usual, rigor mortis was detected immediately.

The subject of UMT is, and has been, a hot potato. President Truman, Gen. Eisenhower, and the veterans and service organizations all favored it.

* * *

AGAINST IT were the AFL, CIO, farm groups, some educators, spokesmen for several churches, and a lot of parents. Particularly a lot of parents.

So the House Armed Services Committee knew it was walking on eggs when early this year it began hearings on a UMT bill.

It held hearings 19 days and listed to 70 witnesses, for an against. It prodded, probed, and looked under the bed.

Finally, by a vote of 27 to 7, the committee members decided we should go ahead with UMT and draw up a bill to do just that.

This bill would have permitted the government to start a small experimental UMT program next fall, taking 18-year-olds for six months' training.

Then the committee sent the full bill to the House for a vote. This proved to be embarrassing.

By coincidence, the UMT program would start next fall just about the time members of Congress were up for reelection.

And a great many parents, who are also voters, had written a great many letters to their congressmen, against UMT.

Speaker Sam Rayburn made a special plea: "Do we not have the fortitude—do we not have the courage—to meet this issue today?"

Apparently the House didn't because it then voted to send the bill back to the committee, thus avoiding the final tell-tale vote.

Since UMT apparently is a dead chicken in the House cooler, the Senate isn't likely to stick its neck out needlessly. As Winston Churchill might have said: "Some chicken, some neck."

Pickaway County Shows Disfavor Of UMT Plan

Pickaway County definitely is opposed to the proposed Universal Military Training program which met its defeat in Congress this week.

In a recent survey of local taxpayers on the question of UMT, local opinion showed 185 persons in favor of the bill while 383 were against the program.

In an overall survey of the other counties in the Congressional district, however, most persons were found in favor of the UMT setup. —As is his ustom on questions of great interest to his onstituents, Congressman James G. Polk of the Sixth Ohio District has conducted a public opinion poll of the district on the question of Universal Military Training.

Last year questionnaires were mailed from his office to residents of Adams, Brown, Clermont, Highland, Pike and Scioto Counties. The first question on this questionnaire was "Do you favor Universal Military Training?"

Since the Ohio General Assembly has added Fayette, Pickaway and Ross counties to the Sixth District, the congressman has recently mailed out questionnaires to residents of these three counties. The first question asked was "Would you vote for Universal Military Training?"

As a result of this survey 4,703 expressed a view favoring Universa' Military Training and 2,729 stated they were opposed.

The tabulation of votes on this question from the nine counties is as follows:

	Yes	No
Adams	424	132
Brown	319	143
Clermont	696	248
Fayette	251	424
Highland	603	258
Pickaway	185	383
Pike	223	68
Ross	581	714
Scioto	1,421	359
Total	4,703	2,729

The congressman announced in Washington that, in view of the answers he has received on the question, he would stand for the bill.

Polk maintained this stand Wednesday when he voted against a motion to return the bill to committee, thus bringing probable death to the measure—at least until after election.

Fayette Youths Arrested Here For Corn Theft

Three Fayette county youths were arrested Wednesday by Pickaway County authorities for allegedly stealing $20 worth of corn.

The trio, identified as Ray Colburn, 19, Joe Williams, 16, and Pearl Webb, 17, all of near Waterloo, said they stole the corn from Fayette County.

Local authorities were called to investigate Wednesday when sacks of corn were discovered under Hanawalt Bridge, near Crownover's Mill.

Deputy Jim Diltz said he sought the trio of youths after persons in the area reported they had seen the lads near the bridge.

In questioning, the youths first said they had stolen the corn in Pickaway County. On later questioning by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, however, they admitted they stole it from the Earl Templeton farm, Fayette County.

The boys admitted stealing 10 bags of ear corn, valued at about $20. When the corn was discovered, however, hogs had ripped open the sacks and only about a dozen ears of corn remained.

Local authorities turned the youths over to Fayette County authorities early Thursday for prosecution.

Planning Is More Important Than Planting

Planning is as important as planting in the home vegetable garden—but planning comes first.

Although gardeners have to wait for the proper weather to plant, they can plan right now. Larry Best, county extension agent, said today, "The important point is to plan before you plant."

Plans are especially important to the gardener who has a small plot of ground. Good plans will mean continuous harvest of a variety of vegetables and extra quantity for winter storage.

Check with the family for their likes and dislikes and consider the space available before you decide on the vegetables to plant. Your plan might include: two leafy, green or yellow vegetables such as kale, spinach or beet greens; two pod vegetables such as peas or beans; two root crops such as carrots, beets or turnips; tomatoes and cabbage, and such additional vegetables as family tastes indicate.

* * *

ADDITIONAL POINTS to remember are: early maturing crops should be planted next to each other. Sweet corn will pollinate better when two or more rows are planted together.

On sloping soil where washing is a problem, rows always should be planted across the slope. Tall growing crops should be planted where they will not shade or interfere with growth of smaller crops.

Best advised gardeners not to plant too much of any one crop at one time. Best place for perennial vegetables such as rhubarb and asparagus is at one side of the garden. There they will not interfere with seedbed preparation. Allow enough space between rows and plants for good growth and easy care.

U.S. Military Diary Being Used By Reds

WASHINGTON, March 6 —(AP)— Parts of a diary by the former military attache to the American embassy in Moscow have been obtained by the Communists, a U. S. Army spokesman disclosed Thursday.

Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn, deputy chief of information, said Iron Curtain sources have been circulating extracts from the diary as part of their propaganda drive against the U. S.

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, its author, was reassigned to duty in Washington in January when the Army found out about the extracts, Dorn said.

The Washington Post said photostats of the extracts are reproduced in a book recently published in Communist - controlled East Germany. It said the book is "aimed at convincing Germans that America is a 'war-monger.'"

The Post said the book quoted one note in the diary as declaring: "Although the military services are primarily concerned with military weapons and methods, we must understand that this war is total war and is fought with all weapons. We must learn that in this war it is fair to hit below the belt."

Mrs. Smith's special problem these days is still airing suitcases for, although she has tried just about everything, the odor lingers on.

Fayette Countians Lose Law Action

COLUMBUS, March 6 — (AP)—Three Fayette County landowners have lost an attempt to force the county agricultural society to pay attorney fees and expenses in a condemnation suit against them.

The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday refused to review lower courts' decisions against the landowners—Clarence Wohletter, Earl L. Scott and Esther Crane. The agricultural society had started condemnation proceedings against 58 acres of land, owned by the trio, but later dropped the action.

Atom Bomb Test Schedule Set Up

LOS ANGELES, March 6—(AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission is laying the groundwork for further A-bomb tests at Frenchman's Flat in Nevada and Eniwetok Island.

Thomas E. Murray said plans call for use of the present proving grounds in Nevada, each spring and fall with the Eniwetok tests at longer intervals.

School Pay Up

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—About 2,100 Columbus public school teachers, administrators and non-professional employes have been given raises. The board of education approved the raises, the second in three months, of about $125 a year for teachers, $250 a year for administrators, and $10 a month for non-professional employes.

Pen Term Given

CLEVELAND, March 6—(AP)—For stabbing another bowling pin boy to death, William Solomon has been sentenced to serve one to 20 years in Ohio Penitentiary. He stabbed Jerome G. Veit, 35, in a fight over a lost wallet Nov. 29.

Traffic Tickets Get No Jury

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday refused to review the case of a man who was refused a jury trial on a traffic ticket in Youngstown.

Locke Miller got a ticket in 1950 for crashing a red light. He claimed he had a right to trial by jury under the state and federal constitutions. But traffic court refused him a jury trial. Common pleas court and the appellate court upheld the traffic court.

Police Pay Upped

CLEVELAND, March 6 — (AP)—Parma's policemen won't resign after all. They have been granted an eight per cent wage increase and a uniform allowance of $50 a year. Twenty-one of the 23 men on the force had said they would have quit.

Suicide Theory Is Backed In Man's Death

YOUNGSTOWN, March 6—(AP)—Evidence he has gathered in the last five weeks "seems almost to clinch the belief George W. Brantner, 74, committed suicide," Police Chief Edward J. Allen reports.

Brantner was found in the coal bin of his home, his head gashed at least 100 times with a hatchet and his neck marked by an apparent attempt at strangulation.

Police have questioned Brantner's daughter, Mrs. Verna Echard, 51, and his grandson, William Echard, 20, a student at DePauw University, about the strange death. Neither of them has been able to supply information supporting the murder theory.

Allen said medical opinions compiled by the police psychiatric consultant, Dr. Merrill D. Evans, backed the suicide theory.

"Since many doctors and psychiatrists have studied this particular case and have stated it was possible for a psychotic individual to inflict such injuries upon himself," Allen said, "it seems almost to clinch the belief that Brantner committed suicide."

Local Musician Chosen To Play In Special Band

Edward Wolf, Capital university junior, has been selected to participate in an Ohio Intercollegiate Band Concert.

Wolf is one of a hundred college musicians, chosen from entrants from the entire state on the basis of ability, recommendation and past performances, who will present a concert in Capital's Mees Hall March 7.

The concert production, under the direction of prominent figures of the music world, is part of the Ohio Bandmaster's Association meeting.

Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolf of East Mound street, is in the public school music curriculum. In addition, he is secretary of the band and member of the Men's Glee Club, orchestra, Kappa Alpha Pi and Phi Mu Alpha.

NEW TROJAN HORSE IS RED

Commies Work Fast To Line Up Italians

(Editor's Note: Italy is a key point in the Kremlin's efforts to fashion a Fifth Column noose around Western Europe. How the Communists are moving there, using trade unions wherever they can, is described here by William L. Ryan, Russian-speaking analyst of the Associated Press foreign staff. On a tour of Europe, Ryan gave the overall picture in two dispatches from Vienna, printed earlier this week. Today he shows how the transmission belt reaches into an individual country).

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

ROME— (AP) —The Communists evidently are organizing furiously in Italy to build their Trojan horse, Moscow's 1952 version of the storied steed that broke the defenses of ancient Troy.

The chain of command from Cominform through the World Federation of Trade Unions and into Italian labor is easily discernible.

Italian non-Communist political leaders profess to discount its importance, but foreigners in Rome do not. In fact, they are watching the situation most carefully.

The Communists, in control of the biggest labor federation, the General Confederation of Italian Labor, have imposed a high level, hard core command over the unions, and the command is organized down to the factory level.

* * *

GIUSEPPE diVittorio, a Moscow-trained Communist who shuttles back and forth to Vienna to WFTU headquarters, has installed in each factory what he calls a "peace committee." This committee is the cell through which the Communists will exercise their control when and if the chips are down. DiVittorio imposed these committees against the will of many in the unions themselves, and the order which created the committees some time ago had the tone of a military command.

Foreign observers in Rome have little doubt these committees are the "action committees" of the future, ready to react swiftly in the event of crisis.

The label "peace committee" clearly shows the influence of the Cominform and the WFTU.

The CGIL is one of three major labor organizations in Italy, and by far the strongest. It claims more than five million members, although a more accurate figure probably would be 3½ million. The non-Communist unions are represented by the Confederation of Italian Trade Unions, claiming more than two million members but probably having only 1,400,000, and the United Italian Labor, with 400,000 members, mostly Socialists.

Italian government leaders are certain a large percentage of Italy's Communists are Communists of opportunity only, and a big part of the membership of the CGIL would be unreliable for the Communists in the event of a showdown.

* * *

BUT THE REDS already have shown they can paralyze Italy with this organization. They did so in 1948, after the attempt in the life of Communist Boss Palmiro Togliatti. Shrewd DiVittorio, knowing his Italians, kept the general strike going only so long as he knew it would be supported. When Italian workers began to get restive, he called it off, rather than risk a demonstration that the Red control was not complete.

The CGIL has not been interfering with the unloading of military supplies in Italy from the United States, ever since the Communist attempts to do so in Naples failed. They are up against the hard fact that Italians need jobs and will frequently throw politics overboard in favor of bread. But the Communists are organizing carefully, down to the level of the lowliest worker.

(Tomorrow—Mapping chaos for Germany).

Numbers Writer Under Indictment

DAYTON, March 6—(AP)—A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted a Springfield man under the new federal law requiring gamblers to buy a $50 tax stamp.

He is Leland H. (Nit) Rice, 39, charged with writing numbers last November, but failing to buy a stamp to cover his operations on or before Nov. 30. Officials said Rice bought a stamp in Cincinnati the last week in December, and turned it in to Springfield police on Feb. 1.

NEW TROJAN HORSE IS RED

Commies Work Fast To Line Up Italians

(Editor's Note: Italy is a key point in the Kremlin's efforts to fashion a Fifth Column noose around Western Europe. How the Communists are moving there, using trade unions wherever they can, is described here by William L. Ryan, Russian-speaking analyst of the Associated Press foreign staff. On a tour of Europe, Ryan gave the overall picture in two dispatches from Vienna, printed earlier this week. Today he shows how the transmission belt reaches into an individual country).

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

ROME— (AP) —The Communists evidently are organizing furiously in Italy to build their Trojan horse, Moscow's 1952 version of the storied steed that broke the defenses of ancient Troy.

The chain of command from Cominform through the World Federation of Trade Unions and into Italian labor is easily discernible.

Italian non-Communist political leaders profess to discount its importance, but foreigners in Rome do not. In fact, they are watching the situation most carefully.

The Communists, in control of the biggest labor federation, the General Confederation of Italian Labor, have imposed a high level, hard core command over the unions, and the command is organized down to the factory level.

* * *

GIUSEPPE diVittorio, a Moscow-trained Communist who shuttles back and forth to Vienna to WFTU headquarters, has installed in each factory what he calls a "peace committee." This committee is the cell through which the Communists will exercise their control when and if the chips are down. DiVittorio imposed these committees against the will of many in the unions themselves, and the order which created the committees some time ago had the tone of a military command.

Foreign observers in Rome have little doubt these committees are the "action committees" of the future, ready to react swiftly in the event of crisis.

The label "peace committee" clearly shows the influence of the Cominform and the WFTU.

The CGIL is one of three major labor organizations in Italy, and by far the strongest. It claims more than five million members, although a more accurate figure probably would be 3½ million. The non-Communist unions are represented by the Confederation of Italian Trade Unions, claiming more than two million members but probably having only 1,400,000, and the United Italian Labor, with 400,000 members, mostly Socialists.

Italian government leaders are certain a large percentage of Italy's Communists are Communists of opportunity only, and a big part of the membership of the CGIL would be unreliable for the Communists in the event of a showdown.

* * *

BUT THE REDS already have shown they can paralyze Italy with this organization. They did so in 1948, after the attempt in the life of Communist Boss Palmiro Togliatti. Shrewd DiVittorio, knowing his Italians, kept the general strike going only so long as he knew it would be supported. When Italian workers began to get restive, he called it off, rather than risk a demonstration that the Red control was not complete.

The CGIL has not been interfering with the unloading of military supplies in Italy from the United States, ever since the Communist attempts to do so in Naples failed. They are up against the hard fact that Italians need jobs and will frequently throw politics overboard in favor of bread. But the Communists are organizing carefully, down to the level of the lowliest worker.

DAYTON, March 6—(AP)—A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted a Springfield man under the new federal law requiring gamblers to buy a $50 tax stamp.

Wilbur Peeple Has Tax Solution; Let Little Woman Figure It Out

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Horace Barnacle had been working like a maddened beaver all morning at a mass of papers on his office desk.

Suddenly he put his head down on his arms and wailed hysterically:

"Let 'em put me in jail! I just can't go on!"

Wilbur Peeple, who sat at the next desk, asked him what the trouble was.

"It's my income tax," moaned Horace, "I just can't figure it out this year. Nobody can."

Wilbur gave him a smile of tolerant superiority.

"It doesn't bother me," he said. "I haven't paid my income tax for years and years."

Barnacle looked horrified.

"Why, that's unpatriotic and dishonest," he objected, "and, besides, they can throw you in prison if your income taxes aren't paid."

"Oh, they're paid all right," said Wilbur. "But I don't pay them."

"Who does—Santa Claus?"

"No, my wife, Trellis Mae."

"I don't get you," said Barnacle, mystified.

"Well, I used to go almost crazy—just like you—trying to figure my own tax," explained Wilbur. "About 10 years ago I decided it was silly for a man to lose his mind that way. Who knows where the money in a family goes anyway? The husband or the wife? So I turned my income tax problems over to Trellis Mae."

"But legally you're responsible for the accuracy of your tax returns," Horace pointed out.

"Not any more," said Wilbur, comfortably. "I went before a judge and had myself declared mentally incompetent to handle my own financial affairs, and had Trellis Mae given power of attorney."

Barnacle thought that over, then shook his head.

"It wouldn't work in my case," he said despondently. "My wife, Desdemona, is even more hopeless at arithmetic than I am. She can't even balance her bank book."

"Grow up, Horace," grinned Wilbur. "That's the beauty of it. No wife can—least of all my Trellis Mae. But no government expert can make sense out of her tax figures either.

"Why, the first time she paid my taxes she spent a whole week arguing with the internal revenue men. It was all because they wouldn't let her list Murgatroyd as a dependent."

"Who's Murgatroyd"

"He's our canary. Trellis Mae says that since Murgatroyd is under 18 and dependent on us they ought to allow us to deduct the price of his bird seed. She's been battling them 10 years on that one item alone. Last year the government fellows offered to chip in and buy Murgatroyd's bird seed themselves if she would drop the subject. But Trellis Mae refused as a matter of principle."

"Don't they ever challenge her returns later" asked Horace.

"Sure, every year," said Wilbur cheerfully. "Once they sent a top specialist down from Washington. He spent four days trying to find out what was wrong with Trellis Mae's report—and gave up. My wife was so mad she immediately filed a revised return demanding a 15 per cent refund. The man couldn't find what was wrong with that one either. He had to pay up."

Horace whistled in admiration.

"It sounds wonderful," he said. "But I kind of hate the idea of having myself declared metnally incompetent."

"Well, all I know," said Wilbur, "is that I feel fine today, but three men in our local internal revenue office have had to quit because of nervous breakdowns from dealing with Trellis Mae and Murgatroyd. You have to do something in self-defense. If every man let his income taxes drive him crazy, who'd be left to pay them"

Draftees Sent To Fill Ranks Of Ohio's 37th

CAMP POLK, March 6—(AP)—The Army is sending draftees to the 37th Division to bring it up to authorized strength.

Most of the division's men were with it when it was part of the Ohio National Guard. Soon after it was federalized on Jan. 15 and sent to Camp Polk for training, a number of Korean veterans were assigned to it as cadre.

Now the Army is filling the ranks with draftees. They are arriving on 17 trains over a 20-day period. The division hopes to process two-thirds of them by Saturday.

No figures were released on how many draftees are being assigned to the division.

Training for the 147th Regiment from Southwestern Ohio has advanced to transition, assault and close combat courses. The division artillerymen are starting to fire the rifle for record. Men of the 145th Regiment are firing bazooka.

Engineers, tankers, medics and special troops are being trained in mines and booby traps.

10 ROUND TRIPS TO THE MOON

By CENTRAL PRESS

TOKYO, Japan—Two years ago the U. S. Air Force sent its Air Weather Service's 56th Strategic Reconnaissance squadron to Tokyo.

Since then the squadron's giant, four-engined WB-29 Superforts have flown Far East weather tracks the equivalent of 10 round trips to the moon.

That's a lot of miles. Some 4,780,000, in fact.

As of the end of February, the squadron, still based in Japan, had toted up more than 20,000 hours of flying time in the Far East area. Calculated at the average 250 mph. air weather planes log in reconnaissance work, this flying time adds up to more than 4,000,000 air miles.

The distance to the moon is 239,000 miles.

The 56th flies the Far East air lanes in a constant search for changes in weather. This information is part of a worldwide mosaic of weather conditions.

Judge Believes Youth 'Earned' The $20,000

MIAMI, March 6—(AP)—A debonair young plumber who wooed a wealthy, middle-aged widow has been credited with earning the $20,000 he allegedly took from her.

"This case does not belong in this court," said Judge Ben C. Willard at the man's trial. "The boy probably earned the $20,000."

So the plumber, 28-year-old Kenneth R. Desmond, who was boy friend, husband and boy friend again to Mrs. Frieda Schienbaum, 58, walked out of court a free man.

Mrs. Scheinbaum, widow of an eastern dye manufacturer, said she met and married Desmond last April, then had the marriage annulled in June after she found he had a criminal record.

When she returned here this winter, she testified, she and her young ex-husband began seeing each other again.

Desmond asked for a check to pay off some "piano men." She signed a blank check and gave it to him.

Later, Mrs. Scheinbaum found her young suitor gone. He left a note thanking her for the check that would help him make a new start in life. Desmond figured his start would cost about $20,000 and cashed the check for that amount.

Wilbur Peeple Has Tax Solution; Let Little Woman Figure It Out

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Horace Barnacle had been working like a maddened beaver all morning at a mass of papers on his office desk.

Suddenly he put his head down on his arms and wailed hysterically:

"Let 'em put me in jail! I just can't go on!"

Wilbur Peeple, who sat at the next desk, asked him what the trouble was.

"It's my income tax," moaned Horace, "I just can't figure it out this year. Nobody can."

Wilbur gave him a smile of tolerant superiority.

"It doesn't bother me," he said. "I haven't paid my income tax for years and years."

Barnacle looked horrified.

"Why, that's unpatriotic and dishonest," he objected, "and, besides, they can throw you in prison if your income taxes aren't paid."

"Oh, they're paid all right," said Wilbur. "But I don't pay them."

"Who does—Santa Claus?"

"No, my wife, Trellis Mae."

"I don't get you," said Barnacle, mystified.

"Well, I used to go almost crazy—just like you—trying to figure my own tax," explained Wilbur. "About 10 years ago I decided it was silly for a man to lose his mind that way. Who knows where the money in a family goes anyway? The husband or the wife? So I turned my income tax problems over to Trellis Mae."

"But legally you're responsible for the accuracy of your tax returns," Horace pointed out.

"Not any more," said Wilbur, comfortably. "I went before a judge and had myself declared mentally incompetent to handle my own financial affairs, and had Trellis Mae given power of attorney."

Barnacle thought that over, then shook his head.

"It wouldn't work in my case," he said despondently. "My wife, Desdemona, is even more hopeless at arithmetic than I am. She can't even balance her bank book."

"Grow up, Horace," grinned Wilbur. "That's the beauty of it. No wife can—least of all my Trellis Mae. But no government expert can make sense out of her tax figures either.

"Why, the first time she paid my taxes she spent a whole week arguing with the internal revenue men. It was all because they wouldn't let her list Murgatroyd as a dependent."

"Who's Murgatroyd"

"He's our canary. Trellis Mae says that since Murgatroyd is under 18 and dependent on us they ought to allow us to deduct the price of his bird seed. She's been battling them 10 years on that one item alone. Last year the government fellows offered to chip in and buy Murgatroyd's bird seed themselves if she would drop the subject. But Trellis Mae refused as a matter of principle."

"Don't they ever challenge her returns later" asked Horace.

"Sure, every year," said Wilbur cheerfully. "Once they sent a top specialist down from Washington. He spent four days trying to find out what was wrong with Trellis Mae's report—and gave up. My wife was so mad she immediately filed a revised return demanding a 15 per cent refund. The man couldn't find what was wrong with that one either. He had to pay up."

Horace whistled in admiration.

"It sounds wonderful," he said. "But I kind of hate the idea of having myself declared metnally incompetent."

"Well, all I know," said Wilbur, "is that I feel fine today, but three men in our local internal revenue office have had to quit because of nervous breakdowns from dealing with Trellis Mae and Murgatroyd. You have to do something in self-defense. If every man let his income taxes drive him crazy, who'd be left to pay them"

Draftees Sent To Fill Ranks Of Ohio's 37th

CAMP POLK, March 6—(AP)—The Army is sending draftees to the 37th Division to bring it up to authorized strength.

Most of the division's men were with it when it was part of the Ohio National Guard. Soon after it was federalized on Jan. 15 and sent to Camp Polk for training, a number of Korean veterans were assigned to it as cadre.

Now the Army is filling the ranks with draftees. They are arriving on 17 trains over a 20-day period. The division hopes to process two-thirds of them by Saturday.

No figures were released on how many draftees are being assigned to the division.

Training for the 147th Regiment from Southwestern Ohio has advanced to transition, assault and close combat courses. The division artillerymen are starting to fire the rifle for record. Men of the 145th Regiment are firing bazooka.

Engineers, tankers, medics and special troops are being trained in mines and booby traps.

10 ROUND TRIPS TO THE MOON

By CENTRAL PRESS

TOKYO, Japan—Two years ago the U. S. Air Force sent its Air Weather Service's 56th Strategic Reconnaissance squadron to Tokyo.

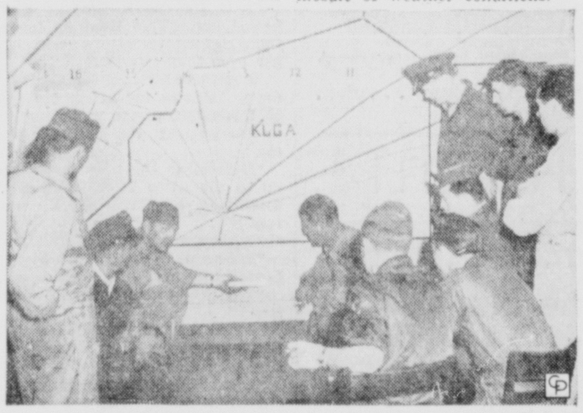

Since then the squadron's giant, four-engined WB-29 Superforts have flown Far East weather tracks the equivalent of 10 round trips to the moon.

That's a lot of miles. Some 4,780,000, in fact.

As of the end of February, the squadron, still based in Japan, had toted up more than 20,000 hours of flying time in the Far East area. Calculated at the average 250 mph. air weather planes log in reconnaissance work, this flying time adds up to more than 4,000,000 air miles.

The distance to the moon is 239,000 miles.

The 56th flies the Far East air lanes in a constant search for changes in weather. This information is part of a worldwide mosaic of weather conditions.

Judge Believes Youth 'Earned' The $20,000

MIAMI, March 6—(AP)—A debonair young plumber who wooed a wealthy, middle-aged widow has been credited with earning the $20,000 he allegedly took from her.

"This case does not belong in this court," said Judge Ben C. Willard at the man's trial. "The boy probably earned the $20,000."

So the plumber, 28-year-old Kenneth R. Desmond, who was boy friend, husband and boy friend again to Mrs. Frieda Schienbaum, 58, walked out of court a free man.

Mrs. Scheinbaum, widow of an eastern dye manufacturer, said she met and married Desmond last April, then had the marriage annulled in June after she found he had a criminal record.

When she returned here this winter, she testified, she and her young ex-husband began seeing each other again.

Desmond asked for a check to pay off some "piano men." She signed a blank check and gave it to him.

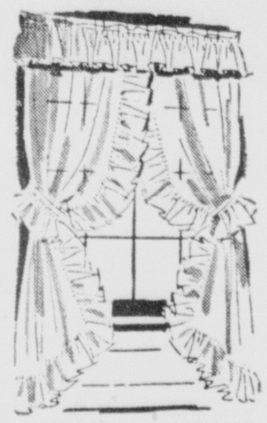

Later, Mrs. Scheinbaum found her young suitor gone. He left a note thanking her for the check that would help him make a new start in life. Desmond figured his start would cost about $20,000 and cashed the check for that amount.

SLOW TO JELL

HATS ARE THROWN into the air when ministers from Western European nations make an agreement until the celebrators are reminded that any agreements are little more than proposals until confirmed by the parliamentary bodies of the various nations involved.

Thus the Schuman plan to merge West Europe's coal and steel industries emerged 20 months ago and a treaty incorporating it was signed a year ago, but only two countries—West Germany and Holland — have ratified it.

The European army plan, which is more controversial than the Schuman plan, was passed by the council of NATO ministers meeting in Lisbon. Six European nations are principally concerned. These six powers will draft a treaty incorporating the provisions of the army plan in a month or six weeks. Then the treaty will be debated in the six parliamentary bodies.

These debates are expected to be quite lengthy since nationalistic emotions, particularly in France and West Germany, are deeply involved. Lacking the urgency of imminent Communist aggression, the West Europeans figure they can debate and defer agreement as long as they desire.

NATO agreements will figure in the presidential campaign in this country. Republicans and Southern Democrats have teamed up to demand that President Truman reveal details of secret agreements, if any, involving American troops. The President replies, as he was expected to do, that there are none.

An astronomer suspects the planet Earth is much older than formerly calculated. Perhaps the trouble with the human race is second childhood.

Much is said of saving the country for our children and children's children. But the present crop would appreciate some salvation right now.

Illinois horse meat scandal has spread to Wisconsin, where investigations are under way in half a dozen counties. What the final payoff will be depends on how the voters parlay these developments at the polls.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

For a long time, I have been wondering about that Kefauver television show. Did it really accomplish something constructive? Obviously, it made Rudolph Halley a figure in New York politics and encouraged Estes Kefauver himself to run for President on the Democratic side.

Was that all?

Apparently it is not so. I have received a circular from the Dominican Republic Information Center, which is devoted to advertising the aforesaid Republic where Christopher Columbus is buried. According to the circular, the Dominican Republic is progressive and takes advantage of every opportunity.

Therefore, as Kefauver drove gambling out of the United States, the Dominican Republic made gambling the cultural tie between the United States and the other Republic. The circular says

"Gambling-in-the-sky via slot machines will feature a four-hour plane flight by the 'Sportsmen's Special', between Miami and Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic—the 'Monte Carlo of the Caribbean' where four legal gambling casinos flourish, if final flight negotiations are completed this week. Three of the casinos have opened since the Kefauver Crime Investigation closed many illegal gambling places in the U.S.

"Service by the 50-passenger chartered plane 'Lady Luck' is scheduled to commence on or about March 7 from Miami. The plane, though owned by the (CDA) Compania Dominicana de Aviacion, a Pan-American subsidiary, would be chartered to a sponsoring promotion group to begin the week-end round-trips between Miami and the West Indies country. The Dominican government itself is not sponsoring the project but approves of it."

In addition to approving of the slot-machines and other devices, the Dominican government sends me this circular through the mails. If any American sent a similar circular through the mails, he would probably go to jail. But then Americans no longer count in the United States except to pay taxes and to have their sons conscripted for United Nations police actions.

I forgot to save the envelope in which this circular came and herefore I cannot tell you whether it used a paid-for stamp or came as diplomatic mail, free of charge. I get a lot of that kind of mail, all free, the object of which is always to educate me to love some foreign country.

But if anyone wants to send some mail about loving America, a paid-for stamp is essential. It is a fine point, this business of who pays to have mail delivered advocating love.

Surgery On Tuberculosis Bone Made Safer By The New Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANTIBIOTICS and other new drugs are now making it possible to operate on tuberculosis of the bone with safety. It was long the rule to avoid surgery in this condition.

Tuberculosis of the bone is not seen too frequently at the present time. Some years ago, this kind of tuberculosis occurred very often, due to contamination of milk with tuberculosis germs. However, since milk now is almost universally pasteurized, tuberculosis of the bone from this source occurs but rarely. It usually develops following a tuberculosis infection somewhere else in the body.

Rest Main Treatment

The main treatment for this form of tuberculosis has been to rest the affected part, as disastrous results have been reported following surgery on tuberculous bone. In the past, it was generally believed that such an operation might endanger the patient by spreading the infection throughout his body. Now, with the new drugs, surgical treatment is more prevalent.

Before performing an operation, however, the surgeon is careful to take certain precautions. The patient must not have a fever or other condition which weakens the body. He must be properly rested, fed, and strengthened. The bone due to undergo operation should be kept at rest with a splint or other device that prevents motion. Usually, streptomycin is given before surgery, together with the drug commonly known as PAS.

If Active TB Is Present

If active chest tuberculosis is present along with the bone infection, an operation should not be performed.

The bone operation should remove tubercular tissue completely if it is to prevent complications. During operation, the tissues must be handled gently.

With the help of these newer methods and drugs, the surgeon can now arrest or permanently cure many cases of tuberculosis of the bones and joints that were formerly thought out of his field.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. M. C. : When is the best time to wean the baby? How does one go about it?

Answer: Usually, weaning of the baby is started at four months of age. At this time a cereal is given in addition to the breast feeding. At five months of age, many physicians recommend that the baby be given a vegetable feeding. At this age, cow's milk is usually gradually substituted for breast milk, although breast milk is given along with the cow's milk.

Weaning should not be done when the baby is sick or is getting over an illness, or when the weather is excessively hot.

Try, Stop Me

Paul Franzenburg, Jr., of Conrad, Ia., sends me the story of the staid gentleman who was beset by a band of rowdy neighbors and acquaintances. Having been in their cups for a time they were determined to have the non-drinker also indulge and urged him by every means at their command to place the jug to his lips and imbibe the fiery brew. He was just as determined to keep his record unsullied.

Finally the rowdies lost patience, set him down on his back, forced a funnel into his mouth, and poured the liquor down his gullet. As he finally regained his footing he was asked, "Now will you take a drink like a gentleman when you're asked?" Loud and clear rang the teetotaler's fearless cry. "Never!" he shouted, "but you can funnel me again."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

MUGGSY chewed on the end of a fingernail, considered Liddell's story on the murdered Lunfar and his girl friend. "You think Brin went over and killed Lunfar to shut him up?" She gave it another minute, then shook her head. "Maybe I'm wrong, but I can't see Hunt as a killer. Rigging roulette wheels, or romancing an old dowager out of her bond coupons, yes. But not a killer."

"Maybe Brin isn't the top man, baby. Maybe he's just a cog."

"I could buy that faster than Brin as a killer," Muggsy assented.

Liddell got up from the couch, walked over to the windows facing out over Central Park. He stared down at the lights that flickered palely in the dawn. "Look, Muggsy, I have no right to tell you this. On the other hand, I have no right to let you get mixed up in this thing unless I do." He walked back to the couch, dropped down beside her. "This thing is bigger than rigging roulette wheels, bigger even than murder."

"I gathered that," she told him dryly. "You're not going out getting yourself on the wrong end of a murder rap for nothing. Tell me."

"Remember the boys who came up to the office after Hong left? The ones with the search warrant?"

Muggsy nodded.

"I saw them again last night," Liddell told her.

"The ones that posed as Federal men?"

Liddell nodded. "They were Federal men. That was a bona fide search warrant."

"What? I thought you said Byers at Treasury said he never heard of you or Hong or the package or anything else?"

Liddell nodded. "He did. But he was under orders to cover up. Hong was an undercover Federal agent."

Muggsy leaned back limply. "Go on."

Liddell grinned. "That's not all. It gets crazier as it goes along, believe me." He pinched his nostrils between thumb and forefinger. "Remember the dame I told you about? The fortune teller that had a flat right under Hong's?"

"I think so. What about her?"

"She was at Hunt Brin's party last night, all decked out in a fancy gown and a new hair-do. She was acting as hostess, no less!"

"Now wait a minute, Johnny. G-men who aren't G-men, but really are G-men I can swallow. Now you're asking me to believe that a broken down old doll travels with Hunt Brin's cafe society crowd."

Liddell held up a finger. "Look at it this way. Goldy's been around ten, fifteen years as far as I can figure. Check?"

Muggsy nodded. "If you say so."

"Okay. Now think back to those clippings we had on Ben Cerla. About ten years or so ago, he had all the protection in this town sewed up tight. So, to Goldy, outside the law with her fortune tellin' he was really a big wheel, knew his way around. Now suppose she gets a red hot idea for a big take. Who do you think would be the first one she'd look up to cut in on it?"

Muggsy worried her lower lip between her teeth. "Sounds okay. But where does Brin come in?"

"Suppose the deal Goldy brings to Cerla is out of his class. Suppose he needs a good front with proper contacts? Who pops into his mind? His old buddy and partner, Hunt Brin!" Liddell waited for an argument, got none. "They go into business together, cut the take three ways. Goldy provides the know-how in Chinatown. After all, she knows her way around like nobody else down there. Cerla provides the muscle. Brin provides the front. All nice and neat."

"Narcotics?" Muggsy guessed.

"Bigger game. They're shaking down the rich Chinese for ransom."

"Ransom? You mean kidnaping? There's none been reported."

Liddell grinned bleakly. "Not here. The kidnaping is going on in parts of occupied China. Relatives of rich Chinese in this country are grabbed and unless the rich American relatives shell out, the hostages are liquidated."

"You think that's Hunt Brin's new racket?"

Liddell nodded. "Goldy fingers the prospects. She knows who has how much over here and where their relatives are. She fingers the ones to be taken, passes the information along to Cerla and Brin gets it through to the Chinese warlords."

Muggsy whistled noiselessly. "That is a big deal. You're trying to crack that racket? That's out of your class, Johnny. That's international stuff."

"Maybe. But I'm going to either crack it or die trying."

"That doesn't sound too hard to do. Not the way these boys play!"

• • •

Inspector Herlehy sat behind the battered old desk in his office, and glared at Johnny Liddell and Muggsy Kiely. "I'd probably be doing you and the public a favor if I locked you up and threw the key away," he growled at Liddell. "You're as irresponsible as a junior grade moron."

Johnny Liddell squirmed uncomfortably on the hardwood chair. "You've got me all wrong, inspector. I tell you I didn't kill Lunfar. You can't make it stick and you know it."

Herlehy chomped indignantly on the wad of gum. "Maybe not, but I sure could make a good stab at it." He swung around, regarded Muggsy Kiely from under bushy eyebrows. "You still stick to your story that Liddell spent the night with you?"

Muggsy dropped her eyes, examined the lacquer finish on her fingernails. "He dropped by at about 2:30 or 3 for a coffee and we didn't notice how the time was flying." She looked up. "It was morning before we knew it."

"Lovely!" Herlehy snorted. He got up from his chair, stamped across the room to the water cooler, took a drink. "I'm warning you, Liddell. If I hang this one on you, I'm going to make it stick. I told you you didn't have a hunting license for Lunfar, and I meant it. Whether he deserved killing or not, you won't get away with it."

"And if I can prove I didn't kill him?"

Herlehy came back to the desk, stood with his feet braced in front of Liddell. "How?"

"By getting the guy who did."

Herlehy sneered. "You do that, Liddell. You bring him in and I'll personally buy you a new .45 to take the place of the one you so conveniently lost."

"I didn't lose it. Whoever busted into my office stole it," Liddell corrected him. "I reported it first thing this morning." He grinned up at Herlehy. "Besides, I'd rather have my old gun back if you happen to find it."

"If we happen to find it, I have a hunch you won't be having any further use for guns," Herlehy growled.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, March 6—The Russell - for - President movement, which represents southern Democrats' only open and widespread revolt since 1860, first assumed serious and definite form here after the mid-January dinner of the famed Alfalfa Club, a convivial organization of politicians, military officers, business men etc. Indeed, this anti-Truman rebellion should be dubbed the "alfalfa breakaway" by future historians. It is a grassroots crop.

"It looks like it's going to be Truman and Taft," said Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina to his two old friends, Senators Richard Brevard Russell of Georgia and Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia. "I am afraid that Taft cannot carry the South.

• • •

ACTION — "Anyway, we should act positively, not negatively. We must put up a candidate of our own. It is not enough to get rid of Truman. We must give warning that this new found and new fangled Democratic party can no longer take the South for granted, no matter how its nominee and platform violate our beliefs.

"We must become as effective in politics as we are in Congress! Lets's translate our words into action! And this is the only way we can do it!"

Senators Byrd and Russell agreed with this declaration of war from the man whose state fired the first shot on Fort Sumter.

• • •

TRIBUTE — Governor Byrnes and Senator Russell at first suggested that Senator Byrd assume the honor of heading the South's first major break with the party's temporary rulers in almost 100 years.

It was a fitting tribute to the Virginian because, even before Messrs. Byrnes and Russell began to voice concern over the Truman-Roosevelt Administration's "socialistic" and "extravagant" tendencies, he had spoken out on and off the Senate floor. He first raised the flag of confederacy in an address at Atlanta last year, and again at Selma, Ala.

Mr. Byrd declined for practical, political reasons. He has been denounced by labor as violently as Senator Taft. AFL-CIO publications refer so frequently to "Byrd-Taft reactionaries" that the label has stuck. President Truman picked up this refrain when he said that "there are too many B-y-r-d-s in the Senate."

• • •

APPEAL — Moreover, as a distinguished Virginian from the state of Robert E. Lee, Mr. Byrd has become known as a "sectionalist." It was agreed by the trio that he would not have as great an appeal to the "deep South," and possibly to voters in Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Texas, as Senator Russell.

The tall, handsome Georgian, despite his great ability, is a modest and unassuming man. He shuns headlines, to the chagrin of Georgia newspapers correspondents at the Capital. He was not too keen for the honor. But there are considerations — practical, political considerations — which led him to accept the Byrnes-Byrd proposal.

• • •

JEFFERSONIAN — Senator Russell is a bachelor, only 45 years old, and much younger and hardier than his Alfalfa Club advisers. He can stand the strain of a tough campaign grind, and he will probably carry his fight to several areas outside the South.

His general, all-around ability as a legislator and statesman—as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, he presided over hearings on the MacArthur recall with eminent skill and fairness—is recognized by his colleagues in both bodies of Congress.

He is no demogogue, no sectionalist, no racialist, no rabble-rouser, no holder of outworn prejudices. His states' rights philosophy has Jeffersonian roots; it is not mired in the swampy everglades of racial hatreds. His record as Speaker of the Georgia Assembly and Governor of that state bears witness to his attitude on this issue.

• • •

ASSETS — Should a three-cornered election be thrown into the House for decision as a result of the Russell entry, he will have many assets in such a legislative contest.

He is extremely popular with northern and western Democrats, both the so-called liberals and conservatives. It is possible that they might accept him in a Truman-Taft-Russell deadlock.

Last, unlike Governor Byrnes and Senator Byrd, kindly, soft-spoken "Dick" Russell has never said an unkind word—publically, at least—about Harry S. Truman.

Indeed, despite their differences on several questions, there is a friendliness between Mr. Russell and Mr. Truman which does not encompass the other Alfalfa conspirators.

• • •

OBJECTIVE — For obvious reasons, the Russell-Byrd-Byrnes faction is not revealing its strategy, if the Presidential contest resolves itself into a House vote. In such an event, each state has only one vote, decided by a majority of its delegation, and the man who achieves a majority becomes President. Therefore, he must have twenty-five states.

Since the southern Democrats primary objective is to defeat Mr. Truman, they will hold out against him to the end. Should the Missourian step aside for Governor Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois or Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, they don't know what they will do—yet.

Off-the-record deals with Stevenson or Kerr on such issues as civil rights, greater economy and less federalization of controls, power and social questions might lead them to throw the Russell votes to a non-Truman substitute. They would probably prefer Kerr.

No deal with the Republicans is envisaged by the Georgian's backers. For them to say that they would gang behind the Republican nominee, whether he be Taft or Eisenhower, would be ruinous. It would lose votes for Russell even among anti-Truman Democrats.

The fact is that, with the possibility of carrying ten or fifteen states, Richard Brevard Russell is running for President, period!

HATS ARE THROWN into the air when ministers from Western European nations make an agreement until the celebrators are reminded that any agreements are little more than proposals until confirmed by the parliamentary bodies of the various nations involved.

Thus the Schuman plan to merge West Europe's coal and steel industries emerged 20 months ago and a treaty incorporating it was signed a year ago, but only two countries—West Germany and Holland — have ratified it.

The European army plan, which is more controversial than the Schuman plan, was passed by the council of NATO ministers meeting in Lisbon. Six European nations are principally concerned. These six powers will draft a treaty incorporating the provisions of the army plan in a month or six weeks. Then the treaty will be debated in the six parliamentary bodies.

These debates are expected to be quite lengthy since nationalistic emotions, particularly in France and West Germany, are deeply involved. Lacking the urgency of imminent Communist aggression, the West Europeans figure they can debate and defer agreement as long as they desire.

NATO agreements will figure in the presidential campaign in this country. Republicans and Southern Democrats have teamed up to demand that President Truman reveal details of secret agreements, if any, involving American troops. The President replies, as he was expected to do, that there are none.

These Days

For a long time, I have been wondering about that Kefauver television show. Did it really accomplish something constructive? Obviously, it made Rudolph Halley a figure in New York politics and encouraged Estes Kefauver himself to run for President on the Democratic side.

Was that all?

Apparently it is not so. I have received a circular from the Dominican Republic Information Center, which is devoted to advertising the aforesaid Republic where Christopher Columbus is buried. According to the circular, the Dominican Republic is progressive and takes advantage of every opportunity.

Therefore, as Kefauver drove gambling out of the United States, the Dominican Republic made gambling the cultural tie between the United States and the other Republic. The circular says

"Gambling-in-the-sky via slot machines will feature a four-hour plane flight by the 'Sportsmen's Special', between Miami and Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic—the 'Monte Carlo of the Caribbean' where four legal gambling casinos flourish, if final flight negotiations are completed this week. Three of the casinos have opened since the Kefauver Crime Investigation closed many illegal gambling places in the U.S.

"Service by the 50-passenger chartered plane 'Lady Luck' is scheduled to commence on or about March 7 from Miami. The plane, though owned by the (CDA) Compania Dominicana de Aviacion, a Pan-American subsidiary, would be chartered to a sponsoring promotion group to begin the week-end round-trips between Miami and the West Indies country. The Dominican government itself is not sponsoring the project but approves of it."

In addition to approving of the slot-machines and other devices, the Dominican government sends me this circular through the mails. If any American sent a similar circular through the mails, he would probably go to jail. But then Americans no longer count in the United States except to pay taxes and to have their sons conscripted for United Nations police actions.

I forgot to save the envelope in which this circular came and herefore I cannot tell you whether it used a paid-for stamp or came as diplomatic mail, free of charge. I get a lot of that kind of mail, all free, the object of which is always to educate me to love some foreign country.

But if anyone wants to send some mail about loving America, a paid-for stamp is essential. It is a fine point, this business of who pays to have mail delivered advocating love.

Surgery On Tuberculosis Bone Made Safer By The New Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANTIBIOTICS and other new drugs are now making it possible to operate on tuberculosis of the bone with safety. It was long the rule to avoid surgery in this condition.

Tuberculosis of the bone is not seen too frequently at the present time. Some years ago, this kind of tuberculosis occurred very often, due to contamination of milk with tuberculosis germs. However, since milk now is almost universally pasteurized, tuberculosis of the bone from this source occurs but rarely. It usually develops following a tuberculosis infection somewhere else in the body.

Rest Main Treatment

The main treatment for this form of tuberculosis has been to rest the affected part, as disastrous results have been reported following surgery on tuberculous bone. In the past, it was generally believed that such an operation might endanger the patient by spreading the infection throughout his body. Now, with the new drugs, surgical treatment is more prevalent.

Before performing an operation, however, the surgeon is careful to take certain precautions. The patient must not have a fever or other condition which weakens the body. He must be properly rested, fed, and strengthened. The bone due to undergo operation should be kept at rest with a splint or other device that prevents motion. Usually, streptomycin is given before surgery, together with the drug commonly known as PAS.

If Active TB Is Present

If active chest tuberculosis is present along with the bone infection, an operation should not be performed.

The bone operation should remove tubercular tissue completely if it is to prevent complications. During operation, the tissues must be handled gently.

With the help of these newer methods and drugs, the surgeon can now arrest or permanently cure many cases of tuberculosis of the bones and joints that were formerly thought out of his field.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. M. C.: When is the best time to wean the baby? How does one go about it?

Answer: Usually, weaning of the baby is started at four months of age. At this time a cereal is given in addition to the breast feeding. At five months of age, many physicians recommend that the baby be given a vegetable feeding. At this age, cow's milk is usually gradually substituted for breast milk, although breast milk is given along with the cow's milk.

Weaning should not be done when the baby is sick or is getting over an illness, or when the weather is excessively hot.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

MUGGSY chewed on the end of a fingernail, considered Liddell's story on the murdered Lunfar and his girl friend. "You think Brin went over and killed Lunfar to shut him up?" She gave it another minute, then shook her head. "Maybe I'm wrong, but I can't see Hunt as a killer. Rigging roulette wheels, or romancing an old dowager out of her bond coupons, yes. But not a killer."

"Maybe Brin isn't the top man, baby. Maybe he's just a cog."

"I could buy that faster than Brin as a killer," Muggsy assented.

Liddell got up from the couch, walked over to the windows facing out over Central Park. He stared down at the lights that flickered palely in the dawn. "Look, Muggsy, I have no right to tell you this. On the other hand, I have no right to let you get mixed up in this thing unless I do." He walked back to the couch, dropped down beside her. "This thing is bigger than rigging roulette wheels, bigger even than murder."

"I gathered that," she told him dryly. "You're not going out getting yourself on the wrong end of a murder rap for nothing. Tell me."

"Remember the boys who came up to the office after Hong left? The ones with the search warrant?"

Muggsy nodded.

"I saw them again last night," Liddell told her.

"The ones that posed as Federal men?"

Liddell nodded. "They were Federal men. That was a bona fide search warrant."

"What? I thought you said Byers at Treasury said he never heard of you or Hong or the package or anything else?"

Liddell nodded. "He did. But he was under orders to cover up. Hong was an undercover Federal agent."

Muggsy leaned back limply. "Go on."

Liddell grinned. "That's not all. It gets crazier as it goes along, believe me." He pinched his nostrils between thumb and forefinger. "Remember the dame I told you about? The fortune teller that had a flat right under Hong's?"

"I think so. What about her?"

"She was at Hunt Brin's party last night, all decked out in a fancy gown and a new hair-do. She was acting as hostess, no less!"

"Now wait a minute, Johnny. G-men who aren't G-men, but really are G-men I can swallow. Now you're asking me to believe that a broken down old doll travels with Hunt Brin's cafe society crowd."

Liddell held up a finger. "Look at it this way. Goldy's been around ten, fifteen years as far as I can figure. Check?"

Muggsy nodded. "If you say so."

"Okay. Now think back to those clippings we had on Ben Cerla. About ten years or so ago, he had all the protection in this town sewed up tight. So, to Goldy, outside the law with her fortune tellin' he was really a big wheel, knew his way around. Now suppose she gets a red hot idea for a big take. Who do you think would be the first one she'd look up to cut in on it?"

Muggsy worried her lower lip between her teeth. "Sounds okay. But where does Brin come in?"

"Suppose the deal Goldy brings to Cerla is out of his class. Suppose he needs a good front with proper contacts? Who pops into his mind? His old buddy and partner, Hunt Brin!" Liddell waited for an argument, got none. "They go into business together, cut the take three ways. Goldy provides the know how in Chinatown. After all, she knows her way around like nobody else down there. Cerla provides the muscle. Brin provides the front. All nice and neat."

"Narcotics?" Muggsy guessed.

"Bigger game. They're shaking down the rich Chinese for ransom."

"Ransom? You mean kidnaping? There's none been reported."

Liddell grinned bleakly. "Not here. The kidnaping is going on in parts of occupied China. Relatives of rich Chinese in this country are grabbed and unless the rich American relatives shell out, the hostages are liquidated."

"You think that's Hunt Brin's new racket?"

Liddell nodded. "Goldy fingers the prospects. She knows who has how much over here and where their relatives are. She fingers the ones to be taken, passes the information along to Cerla and Brin gets it through to the Chinese warlords."

Muggsy whistled noiselessly. "That is a big deal. You're trying to crack that racket? That's out of your class, Johnny. That's international stuff."

"Maybe. But I'm going to either crack it or die trying."

"That doesn't sound too hard to do. Not the way these boys play!"

* * *

Inspector Herlehy sat behind the battered old desk in his office, and glared at Johnny Liddell and Muggsy Kiely. "I'd probably be doing you and the public a favor if I locked you up and threw the key away," he growled at Liddell. "You're as irresponsible as a junior grade moron."

Johnny Liddell squirmed uncomfortably on the hardwood chair. "You've got me all wrong, inspector. I tell you I didn't kill Lunfar. You can't make it stick and you know it."

Herlehy chomped indignantly on the wad of gum. "Maybe not, but I sure could make a good stab at it." He swung around, regarded Muggsy Kiely from under bushy eyebrows. "You still stick to your story that Liddell spent the night with you?"

Muggsy dropped her eyes, examined the lacquer finish on her fingernails. "He dropped by at about 2:30 or 3 for a coffee and we didn't notice how the time was flying." She looked up. "It was morning before we knew it."

"Lovely!" Herlehy snorted. He got up from his chair, stamped across the room to the water cooler, took a drink. "I'm warning you, Liddell. If I hang this one on you, I'm going to make it stick. I told you you didn't have a hunting license for Lunfar, and I meant it. Whether he deserved killing or not, you won't get away with it."

"And if I can prove I didn't kill him?"

Herlehy came back to the desk, stood with his feet braced in front of Liddell. "How?"

"By getting the guy who did."

Herlehy sneered. "You do that, Liddell. You bring him in and I'll personally buy you a new .45 to take the place of the one you so conveniently lost."

"I didn't lose it. Whoever busted into my office stole it," Liddell corrected him. "I reported it first thing this morning." He grinned up at Herlehy. "Besides, I'd rather have my old gun back if you happen to find it."

"If we happen to find it, I have a hunch you won't be having any further use for guns," Herlehy growled.

Having been in their cups for a time they were determined to have the non-drinker also indulge and urged him by every means at their command to place the jug to his lips and imbibe the fiery brew. He was just as determined to keep his record unsullied.

Finally the rowdies lost patience, set him down on his back, forced a funnel into his mouth, and poured the liquor down his gullet. As he finally regained his footing he was asked, "Now will you take a drink like a gentleman when you're asked?" Loud and clear rang the teetotaler's fearless cry. "Never!" he shouted, "but you can funnel me again."

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

The child who is always a "slow poke" at doing ordinary things with feet or hands at school or at home can be very annoying to his parents and teachers as well as to himself. Some children may be born dawdlers, but most get that way because they have so long and often been nagged when they do things a bit slowly.

Of a girl, ten, the mother writes: "My daughter started dawdling when she was about five. She's been dawdling ever since, and getting worse. In her last school report she received 'W' in dependability, and when I inquired about the matter, the teacher told me that the 'W' (which stands for weak) was given because she was so slow.

It seems she was always the last to finish her papers, the last to leave the classroom, the last to get her gymsuit on in gym, the last to get it off on time, etc. Her companion is also a very slow girl, and together they are about as slow as 'molasses in January.'

* * *

"GETTING READY for bed at night, getting dressed in the morning, and doing her homework are the things at which she dawdles most. Getting her to meals is also difficult, but she doesn't waste time over the meal itself. She takes about an hour to wash, clean her teeth and put on her pajamas."

Here in part is how I wrote this mother: You assume that all her trouble is in the movements of her feet and hands. You seem to take no account of her heart and head.

I can see how you are troubled and how much more that child is. Apparently she enjoys little or no success. Hers must be a very discouraging life. Always in disfavor for her slowness, always hearing "hurry, hurry," she must constantly feel unhappy at home and at school. Perhaps her dawdling gives her a few comfortable moments, when by daydreaming she escapes some of her discomforts.

Please don't scold her about her pokiness at school, even if you can't stop nagging about her dawdling at home. Try to help her feel more worthy as a member of the family. Sit down with Dad and try to find ways to this end. Figure out how you parents and she can have more good times together, and how you can help her have more good times with other children of her age.

* * *

TRY TO FIND OUT what learning troubles she has with her school work. Try always to be serene and patient when you help her at her lessons. I'm enclosing my bulletin on homework and home helps in reading, spelling and arithmetic (to be had also by others in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper).

Try to quit shouting "hurry" at her. Often help her willingly and without the slightest show of anger when she walls behind, as in getting ready for school.

Center on just one type of poking at a time. Coming to meals on time might be easy to attack first. If you could induce her to help put the food on the table and enjoy success at it, this might do the trick. Otherwise, give her a warning signal ten minutes before time for serving the meal.

Then if she is not there promptly and properly groomed, require her to sit without food at some distance from the table for fifteen minutes or until the rest of the family have finished. Remember, no jawing and no stirring of your insides.

Don't look for miracles. Show your gladness over smallest gains.

Answering Parents' Questions

Q. Our nine-year-old daughter wants to talk most of the time during the family meal, but doesn't care to listen to others talk.

* * *

A. PLACE A CLOCK on the table and tell her she may talk during the first three minutes, but at the end of this time must keep quiet long enough to allow the rest of the family each to talk as long. If she does not keep silent during this period, send her to another room to finish her meal there. Be sure you listen raptly while she does talk. Continue with this program till she learns to share properly in talking time.

Youngstown Hit By Major Fire

YOUNGSTOWN, March 6—(AP)—Firemen still were spraying water Thursday on two burning, two-story buildings in downtown Youngstown. But they said the blaze was under control.

The fire, which broke out Wednesday evening, nearly wrecked the Treudley building and severely damaged the Home Equipment Co. building next door. Smoke knocked out six firemen. Three were revived with oxygen on the spot, but the others had to be treated in a hospital.

Atlanta

February meeting of the WSCS was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Peck with 22 members and three visitors present. Business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Ulin McGhee. It was voted on to send a sum to the March of Dimes. Rev. McGarity gave an announcement of the Week of Dedication approaching, with special services at New Holland church on Feb. 29. Mrs. Joe Bush, secretary of spiritual life, gave a reading. Secretary of social relations, Mrs. Everett Hoskins, asked the members to bring in an old hat at the next meeting. Program followed by Mrs. Bethel Wilkins and Mrs. Alfred Nelson, with Mrs. George Levally at the piano for the prelude and musical numbers. Mesdames George Betts, Pearl Ater, Clarence Fox, J. C. Roberts, Ward Dean and Nellie Creighton assisted in the reading. After the benediction, a contest and white elephant sale followed. Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

The child who is always a "slow poke" at doing ordinary things with feet or hands at school or at home can be very annoying to his parents and teachers as well as to himself. Some children may be born dawdlers, but most get that way because they have so long and often been nagged when they do things a bit slowly.

Of a girl, ten, the mother writes: "My daughter started dawdling when she was about five. She's been dawdling ever since, and getting worse. In her last school report she received 'W' in dependability, and when I inquired about the matter, the teacher told me that the 'W' (which stands for weak) was given because she was so slow.

It seems she was always the last to finish her papers, the last to leave the classroom, the last to get her gymsuit on in gym, the last to get it off on time, etc. Her companion is also a very slow girl, and together they are about as slow as 'molasses in January.'

* * *

"GETTING READY for bed at night, getting dressed in the morning, and doing her homework are the things at which she dawdles most. Getting her to meals is also difficult, but she doesn't waste time over the meal itself. She takes about an hour to wash, clean her teeth and put on her pajamas."

Here in part is how I wrote this mother: You assume that all her trouble is in the movements of her feet and hands. You seem to take no account of her heart and head.

I can see how you are troubled and how much more that child is. Apparently she enjoys little or no success. Hers must be a very discouraging life. Always in disfavor for her slowness, always hearing "hurry, hurry," she must constantly feel unhappy at home and at school. Perhaps her dawdling gives her a few comfortable moments, when by daydreaming she escapes some of her discomforts.

Please don't scold her about her pokiness at school, even if you can't stop nagging about her dawdling at home. Try to help her feel more worthy as a member of the family. Sit down with Dad and try to find ways to this end. Figure out how you parents and she can have more good times together, and how you can help her have more good times with other children of her age.

* * *

TRY TO FIND OUT what learning troubles she has with her school work. Try always to be serene and patient when you help her at her lessons. I'm enclosing my bulletin on homework and home helps in reading, spelling and arithmetic (to be had also by others in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper).

Try to quit shouting "hurry" at her. Often help her willingly and without the slightest show of anger when she walls behind, as in getting ready for school.

Center on just one type of poking at a time. Coming to meals on time might be easy to attack first. If you could induce her to help put the food on the table and enjoy success at it, this might do the trick. Otherwise, give her a warning signal ten minutes before time for serving the meal.

Then if she is not there promptly and properly groomed, require her to sit without food at some distance from the table for fifteen minutes or until the rest of the family have finished. Remember, no jawing and no stirring of your insides.

Don't look for miracles. Show your gladness over smallest gains.

Answering Parents' Questions

Q. Our nine-year-old daughter wants to talk most of the time during the family meal, but doesn't care to listen to others talk.

* * *

A. PLACE A CLOCK on the table and tell her she may talk during the first three minutes, but at the end of this time must keep quiet long enough to allow the rest of the family each to talk as long. If she does not keep silent during this period, send her to another room to finish her meal there. Be sure you listen raptly while she does talk. Continue with this program till she learns to share properly in talking time.

Youngstown Hit By Major Fire

YOUNGSTOWN, March 6—(AP)—Firemen still were spraying water Thursday on two burning, two-story buildings in downtown Youngstown. But they said the blaze was under control.

The fire, which broke out Wednesday evening, nearly wrecked the Treudley building and severely damaged the Home Equipment Co. building next door. Smoke knocked out six firemen. Three were revived with oxygen on the spot, but the others had to be treated in a hospital.

Dayton Pair Believes Lost Son Located

SOUTH BEND, March 6 — (AP)— After eight years, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Thompson of Dayton believe they have found their son who was kidnaped by a nursemaid when he was a baby.

They say an eight-year-old boy living with Robert A. Tipp is their son, Ronnie.

They say the boy was taken by Tipp's former wife, Lois, and that the former Mrs. Tipp was Mary Wilkey, the nursemaid who kidnaped their son in 1944.

They asked Juvenile Judge John S. Gonas to order Tipp into court, thus starting action to gain custody of the child.

Tipp, now re-married, told newsmen his former wife produced Mississippi birth certificates for her two sons.

The former Mrs. Tipp was indicted in Tampa, Fla., for the murder of one of her sons. But she was declared insane and committed to a mental hospital, where she still is a patient.

In January of this year, Michigan investigators tried to link Mrs. Tipp to the kidnaping of Paul Jevaharian of Detroit, who was carried off by a nursemaid when he was 11-months-old and to the kidnaping of the Dayton couple's child. Dayton authorities also became interested.

Mrs. Thompson and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Walker of Dayton, both identified pictures of the former Mrs. Tipp as Ronnie's former nursemaid.

Ohio Fuel Opens New Gas Pipeline

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Tuesday put into service the second link of a new pipeline that will help bring natural gas direct to Columbus from Hocking County's underground storage areas.

A 17-mile stretch of a new 47-mile pipeline has just been completed, the company said. The first 16-mile section extended from the company's Benton storage field in Hocking County to the Crawford compressor station south of Lancaster.

It was completed in December at a cost of $1,028,395. The newest section runs from the Crawford station to a point near Carroll. It cost $945,000. The last section, from Carroll to Columbus, will be built this summer.

Dayton Pair Believes Lost Son Located

SOUTH BEND, March 6 — (AP)— After eight years, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Thompson of Dayton believe they have found their son who was kidnaped by a nursemaid when he was a baby.

They say an eight-year-old boy living with Robert A. Tipp is their son, Ronnie.

They say the boy was taken by Tipp's former wife, Lois, and that the former Mrs. Tipp was Mary Wilkey, the nursemaid who kidnaped their son in 1944.

They asked Juvenile Judge John S. Gonas to order Tipp into court, thus starting action to gain custody of the child.

Tipp, now re-married, told newsmen his former wife produced Mississippi birth certificates for her two sons.

The former Mrs. Tipp was indicted in Tampa, Fla., for the murder of one of her sons. But she was declared insane and committed to a mental hospital, where she still is a patient.

In January of this year, Michigan investigators tried to link Mrs. Tipp to the kidnaping of Paul Jevaharian of Detroit, who was carried off by a nursemaid when he was 11-months-old and to the kidnaping of the Dayton couple's child. Dayton authorities also became interested.

Mrs. Thompson and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Walker of Dayton, both identified pictures of the former Mrs. Tipp as Ronnie's former nursemaid.

Ohio Fuel Opens New Gas Pipeline

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Tuesday put into service the second link of a new pipeline that will help bring natural gas direct to Columbus from Hocking County's underground storage areas.

A 17-mile stretch of a new 47-mile pipeline has just been completed, the company said. The first 16-mile section extended from the company's Benton storage field in Hocking County to the Crawford compressor station south of Lancaster.

It was completed in December at a cost of $1,028,395. The newest section runs from the Crawford station to a point near Carroll. It cost $945,000. The last section, from Carroll to Columbus, will be built this summer.

U.S. Loses Nearly Billion A Month

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The government closed out the first eight months of the fiscal year $7,520,481,692 in the red.

The Treasury reported that during February, however, it enjoyed one of its relatively rare surplus periods. Government income exceeded expenses by $448,212,976 in February—due largely to the annual influx of income tax payments.

Weekly Food Review

Fast-falling butter prices took the food news spotlight this week.

Since last Thursday, butter has dropped as much as 12 cents a pound in the big - volume retail stores of many cities, reflecting the sharpest reduction in years at the wholesale level.

The reductions were attributed largely to consumer price resistance. Butter was at a four-year high in many sections at the peak last week, selling from 97 cents to $1 a pound.

But there were also other factors. High butter prices attracted more fluid milk into butter channels and production increased. Output for the nation last week was up nine per cent from the previous week, although it still lagged behind the year-ago level. The bigger production trend should continue seasonally now with milk output rising.

Also, movement of butter into storage was virtually at a standstill, butter men said, because nobody was inclined to lay in stocks with prices at their peak.

* * *

PRICES OF other important foods showed little overall change at retail this week. A few moderately-sharp declines in beef cuts, particularly roasts, were too scattered to indicate a trend and were attributed to temporary over-supply conditions in a handful of markets.

Egg prices were a little firmer at wholesale as military buying increased and more eggs moved into storage, but retail prices were mostly steady.

On the fresh produce counters, lettuce, onions, carrots, strawberries and tangerines were a little higher, while fresh corn, celery and radishes eased slightly on heavier supplies.

The Agriculture Department listed apples, eggs, broiling and frying chickens, oranges, lettuce and pork as most-plentiful foods for thrifty buying this week.

And prominently mentioned on retailers' lists of special were fish fillets of several varieties, round pot roast, fowl, cheese, turkeys, smoked hams, fryers, beef roasts, citrus fruits, cabbage and canned tuna.

Teen Tips

When a girl likes two boys, which should she chose?

"I like a boy at school very much," writes a high school girl, "but lately he has been conceited and fickle, so I've been dating another boy. This other boy is wonderful to me and says he likes me very much."

"I like the second boy, too, but don't want to break off completely with the first one, because I still have a liking for him. Can you suggest a good way for me to choose between the two without hurting anyone's feeling?

Ansl—When it's hard to choose between two boys—don't!

There's no law that you must give up the friendship of one boy in order to have the friendship of the other. You like them both and they like you. So why not continue to be good friends with both boys? Explain to them, if necessary, that you can't decide about "going steady" yet (without going into the reason why).

You are entitled to know and date more than one boy . . . unless you are so much in love with one that you want to "go steady" and be "engaged to be engaged" to him.

It's no concern of either boy who your friends are or whether you date others or not. Keep on being good friends with both, for the present and events will gradually work out the problem for you, revealing exactly which boy you like best. Or else you'll meet a third one who will make you forget them both!

Train Wreck Debris Yields 102 Bodies

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 6—(AP)—Rescue workers dug Wednesday in the splintered debris of a freak train wreck, fearing the toll of 102 dead will rise higher in Brazil's worst railroad disaster.

About 200 were injured.

The wreck happened on bridge arching the flooded Pavuna River as two trains approached each proached each other on the double other on the double track at a combined speed of 100 miles an hour.

Three wooden coaches of one passenger train jumped the rails and swung across the path of a speeding steel-bodied commuters' train. The electric locomotive of the commuter train smashed the coaches into splintered kindling.

Some bodies fell into the river, swollen by recent rains. Others dangled from the bridge or lay in the smashed wreckage.

An official of the state - owned railroad said quick arrival of rescue workers probably saved many lives.

New Tax Asked

WARREN, March 6—(AP)—Mayor William C. Burbank has asked city council to pass a city income tax of eight-tenths of one per cent, effective for the balance of 1952. Voters here refused to renew a one per cent income tax when it expired at the end of 1950.

Looking Ahead

A machinist out of work would be surprised to come across a classified advertisement in his local paper saying:

"Wanted — Machinists. Bring your own lathe. Can start work immediately. Good wages. We prefer men who have extra lathes. Employment Office, Ajam Mfg. Co."

No matter how badly he needed work the average machinist couldn't take one of these jobs because the lathe in a modern machine shop costs from $10,000 to $100,000 and he has neither the lathe nor the thousands of dollars necessary to buy one.

Fortunately the workers in American industry do not have to supply the machine tools with which they work. But someone has to supply them. Here's an ad that would shock a steel worker looking for a job: "Wanted—Experienced open hearth man who can furnish his own open hearth furnace. Good pay. Steady work. Furnace must be in good condition. Phone 9-8765."

* * *

ONE OF THE blast furnaces in today's modern steel mills costs about $12,000,000. No steel mill worker could buy one, of course. But someone has to provide them before the $15 to $30-a-day jobs are available in the steel mills.

Investors with enough surplus money to invest in corporation stocks are almost as important to a man working in an American industry as are a sound pair of hands or two good eyes. Corporation profits are equally important to the working man; they serve his welfare and his family's, they work for him like a second pair of hands.

The stockholders provide a big share of the capital with which to buy machine tools, with which to construct the plant itself, with which to buy the raw materials and market the finished product. The other share of the operating capital comes from profits made by the company. U. S. Department of Commerce figures show that 58 cents out of every dollar of profit made by all American industries last year went not to the owners of industry, the stockholders, but to replace worn out machinery and other equipment, to expand the production through building new facilities, and for surplus or safety funds to tide the industries over any rough spots—and keep the employees on the job.

It requires an average of $10,800 in invested capital to provide each man or woman in American industry with a job. The average savings of an American is $1,120 counting his bank savings, government bonds, etc.

Thus, in effect, it takes the life savings of nine Americans to furnish the tools of one industrial job. Only a few thousand dollars invested makes a job in some industries, but in some—like petroleum, chemicals and railroads—the necessary investment ranges on upwards, $20,000 or $30,000 or $40,000 per job. One million young men and women enter the nation's work force each year. At $10,800 each, that's more than $10 billion needed for industrial expansion each year. It must come from profits and stock sales.

Here's another sample—to make a railroad man roar: "Wanted—Railroad locomotive engineer. Good working conditions. We will furnish tracks. You bring your own locomotive. Good opportunity for man with modern equipment. Apply in person—A. B. & C. R. R. Co. "What engineer could buy a locomotive! Yet somebody must.

In our American business system capital and labor and management are a team. Each is an indispensable part of industrial production.

* * *

ALL THREE have a common interest in continuous production, in healthy profits, in attractive dividends, in the kind of economic freedom that gives industrial ownership and management the opportunity to make decisions based on the best business judgment. In the long run the entire productive capacity of American industry stands or falls on the business soundness of the decisions made in its operations.

The American business system could not long withstand political management or control. Political controls upset the natural laws of commerce, and nine times out of ten government decisions involving the operations of business and industry are made on the basis of what's good politics, not on sound business judgment. Thus, today, with mounting Federal bureaucratic control in business and industry, the capital structure which has made possible such magnificent tools for American workers is endangered. Everybody's welfare is at stake, for as American industry goes so goes the nation. It is the Babe Ruth of American progress.

Landlord Guilty In Murder Case

CLEVELAND, March 6—(AP)—Landlord John R. Harris, 47, who used a dog as a "witness", was convicted Tuesday night of murdering his tenant, Samuel Reed, 56. Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merrick sentenced him to a life term in Ohio Penitentiary.

During the trial, the victim's German shepherd dog was brought to court. Harris tried to show he acted in self-defense against the attacks of a "vicious" dog. However, the dog was docile in court, even accepting a piece of candy from a juror.

Youth 'Dies' Then Lives In Draft Center

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—The drama of a youth who "died" and then lived again disturbed the steady pace of draft examinations Tuesday at the army pre-induction center here.

But the "second life" of 20-year-old Franklin James Morrison was short. It lasted but 40 minutes.

Morrison, of Bellerose, N. Y., was waiting in line with other inductees to be weighed when he suddenly pitched forward to the floor. He turned blue and seemed to stop breathing.

For three-and-a-half hours the center's doctors worked over him, applying artificial respiration and oxygen. Finally the youth's breathing was restored and he was placed in an iron lung sent from a hospital. But he died 40 minutes later.

Morrison had suffered previously from rheumatic fever, but had been believed to have recovered from this illness.

Call out the Reserves with a touch of your toe!

Most cars lead a double life.

A good part of the time, they're running errands, taking children to school, taking women to stores, taking men to work, taking family and friends to clubs and social functions.

It doesn't call for a very great output of horsepower for duties like these.

But there are times when you want a car that can do vastly more, and these are the times when you'll want what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

Beneath its proud hood, there's a Fireball 8 Engine – a valve-in-head that can let loose 170 lively horsepower when needed.

And – alongside this engine – there's also an Airpower carburetor which thriftily feeds fuel and air through two smaller-than-usual barrels for normal driving – which means that you now use less gas at 40 than you'd formerly use at 30.

But there are two barrels in reserve – waiting for you to call them into action – and they let loose a soaring rush of power that sinks your shoulders back into the seat cushion, swoops you past a truck—out of a tight spot—up a hill—sets your speedometer needle to registering added miles more than twice as fast as your watch can tick off the seconds.

This is an experience you certainly should know firsthand.

You should also know how Buick's Power Steering* provides a helping hand in slow-motion maneuvers—lets you keep the "feel" of the car in straightaway driving.

And just for good measure, this '52 ROADMASTER also has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick—the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders—a warning light that glows when the parking brake is set—and to top it all, the smartest interior fabrics that Buick has ever offered.

When are you coming in to look this distinguished performer over? We urge you to make it soon.

*Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. Optional at extra cost on ROADMASTER only.

Obituary

OBITUARY

Samuel E. Strawser, the son of William and Laurry Weaver Strawser, was born in Pickaway county, Ohio May 22, 1897. Death came while he was a patient at the Dayton Veterans hospital on Feb. 22, 1952, at the age of 54 years and nine months.

In Sept. of 1918 he entered the U.S. Army during the first world war. He served in the Armed forces for about a year.

On Oct. 13, 1919 he was united in marriage to Audrey Bowman. To this union was born three sons, Earl, of Stockton, Cal., Ralph of the Lockbourne Army Air Base, and Paul who preceded his father in death, having passed away in 1940.

Sam joined the Ringgold E.U.B. Church early in life; where he remained a member until the time of his death.

Mr. Strawser was an industrious, hard-working man all of his life. He enjoyed work, his family, his home, friends, and his church. Because of his love to be busy it was extremely hard for him during the last two years to reconcile himself to rest and leisure as physical condition necessitated. He shall be sadly missed by all of us who had learned to love and appreciate his courage and determination.

Those surviving beside the widow and two sons are a sister, Mrs. Clarence Beavers of Buckeye Lake; Three half sisters Mrs. Floyd Mast of Lancaster, Mrs. Frank Banash of Gahanna, and Mrs. Russell Fausnaugh of Circleville. And three half brotners, Robert Strawser of Columbus, and William and Charles Strawser of Circleville.

Hiram's Cagers Consistent Anyhow

HIRAM, March 6 — (AP)—Poor Hiram College: Its basketball season has ended and it STILL hasn't won a game since January, 1951.

Wednesday night's 92-88 loss to Akron was its 27th straight, and made it 18 defeats for the season.

Cook Paces CHS Cagers In Scoring

Tiger Courtman Nets 234 Points During Season

Jim Cook was top scorer for Circleville high school's Red and Black Tiger basketball team during its 1951-52 season.

Cook collected a total of 234 points for the CHS'ers this season while the Tigers posted a record of seven victories in 21 starts.

Ranking second to Cook in the scoring column this season was Dudley Morris, who connected for 198 points, while Jerry Pritchard was in runnerup spot with 144.

According to Tiger Scorekeeper Larry Hafey, Cook made 62.5 percent of his free throws this last season and 40 percent of his field goal attempts.

Morris's percentage was better for the season. The lanky southpaw dunked in 65.7 percent of his free throws while hitting for 41.3 percent of his field goals.

* * *

RANKING FOURTH on the Tiger scoring parade this season was Mike Brown, with 133 points, while Don Olney was fifth with 126 and Big Bill Gillis was sixth with 91.

Rooney was next with 78, while other Tiger scorers were John Wilkes, 33; Robin Jones, 10; Jack Pontious, five; Ronnie Bennington, two; and Walt Heine, none.

In all, Circleville cagers this season collected a total of 1,154 points, an average of 55.7 counters per contest.

Circleville's varsity crew hit for a 33.5 percent on its attempted field goals during the season, while, apparently spurred on by an offer of a special plaque for the top foul shooter, marked 54.5 percent of its free throws.

In reserve ball, Circleville's Junior Tigers were paced in scoring by Ronnie Bennington, who tallied 198 points for the season, 11.5 per contest.

Second high scorer for the reserve aggregation was Dave Greeno with 184 points, an average of 10 per game.

Circleville's basketball team will be feted by the Circleville Booster Club next Wednesday night during an informal affair in Circleville high school.

'HEARTBREAK HIGHWAY' FOR SURE

Mighty Hamilton Falls In District Tourney

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—They call the Ohio high school tournament trail "Heartbreak Highway"—and that's what it proved to be Wednesday night for Hamilton's Big Blue team.

The Butler County powerhouse, rated No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, Class A champion in 1937 and 1949, and runnerup for the crown a year ago, was rolling along with a 20-1 record until it ran into Cincinnati Withrow.

Withrow, the Queen City's public school league champ, boasting a 17-2 record up to the crucial district tourney clash, bumped the Big Blue off the championship trail, 55-53, in a double overtime.

Alex Ellis put Hamilton out front 51-49 with 20 seconds to go in the regulation game, but Bob Work knotted it for Withrow. Ellis jammed the Big Blue ahead in the first overtime, only to have Bob Surman knot it again. They went into a sudden death overtime, and Don McDaniel scored his only field goal of the night to send Withrow into Friday night's district finals against Cincinnati Roger Bacon which has copped 21 of 23.

* * *

WHILE THE NO. 1 team in the Class A poll was dropping by the wayside, Miller City's Midgets, 1950 champions who topped the Class B voting, rolled on to their 24th win in 25 starts by handing Edgerton its second loss in 24 contests, 47 to 39, in Defiance.

Grand Rapids, the 1951 Class B champion, puts its 18-1 record against a more than worthy foe Thursday night in Fremont as it meets Castalia Margaretta. The latter school, winner of the 1932 Class B laurels, had dropped only one of 20 starts.

Waynesburg, Stark County champion and runnerup to Grand Rapids a year ago, racked up its 25th straight conquest by downing Champion, 49-36 in Kent.

Youngstown Woodrow Wilson continued to be the "surprise" entry in Class A. The Wilson crew, which won only two of 18 pretourney games, eliminated favored Niles (17-2) 44-42 Monday night, and came back Wednesday night for a 46-42 win over Salem which had broken even in 18 frays.

In Class A, 197 teams have been eliminated, but there are still 10 former champions among the 54 survivors—and the 10 have accounted for 19 of the 29 titles which have been decided. Four former Class B kings are among the 59 teams remaining from the starting field of 865.

Here are Wednesday night's scores and Thursday night's schedule:

Herm Surprised Red Railbirds; Brooklyn Eyes Teen-Age Hurler

TAMPA, March 6—(AP)—Some of the railbirds thought it looked like the same old Herman Wehmeier for a few minutes Wednesday and then the Big Cincinnati Reds' right-hander made them change their minds.

He walked the first two men to face him and then allowed only one hit over four innings as the Virgil Stallcups won a 7 to 0 game from the Grady Hattons.

"I don't see how Wehmeier can miss having a great season," said Manager Luke Sewell after the workout.

PHOENIX—Whity Lockman, the new No. 1 hitter on the New York Giants, is perfectly happy being assigned to the top of the batting order.

"I think my hitting No. 1 is going to improve my average," he said.

VERO BEACH—Newest of the phenoms in the Brooklyn Dodger camp is Johnny Podres, a teenage pitcher.

Johnny, who has had only Class D experience, has hurled six scoreless innings in intra-squad games, and has not given up a walk.

SARASOTA — The Boston Red Sox are enthused about rookie pitcher Don Barnett, who has displayed fine form and a tricky pickoff motion so far in training drills.

The young righthander gave up only one hit in four innings Wednesday and rivaled the Socker's accomplished Bill Wight in catching runners off base.

TUCSON—In the highly competitive contest for Cleveland's right-field position, Bob Kennedy is far in front at this point.

"Harry Simpson hasn't looked good at all," said Indian Manager Al Lopez. "But Kennedy has. If I had to pick the right fielder right now it would be Kennedy."

ST. PETERSBURG—Al Schoendienst worked out at second base for the first time Wednesday since joining the St. Louis Cardinals at their spring training quarters.

Schoendienst, the Cards' veteran second baseman, has played first base this far in practice with Manager Eddie Stanky doing the work at second.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—The Philadelphia Athletics travel to Orlando this weekend to open their Grapefruit League season with Saturday and Sunday games against the Washington Senators.

Manager Jimmy Dykes has picked three righthanders, Ed Burtschy, Harry Byrd and Mike Kume to face the Senators for three inning shifts in the opening game.

Mint Salisbury Dies In Home

CLEVELAND, March 6 — (AP)—Alexander Matthew (Mint) Salisbury, who once trained and drove harness horses for the Russian Czar Nicholas, died Tuesday in his home in North Randall.

After fleeing the Russian revolution in 1917, Salisbury came to the United States and was associated for many years with the late William F. Caton, another harness horse trainer and driver.

Burke's Streak Being Tested

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6—(AP)—A field of 181 golfers began trying Thursday to break the three-tournament winning streak of Jack Burke Jr.

They began teeing off in the 18th annual St. Petersburg Open. Burk, the Houston pro who has won the Texas Open, the Houston Open and the Baton Rouge Open in a row, is rated as the man to beat.

After All, It's Early For Fishing

WAYNESBURG, Miss., March 6—(AP)—Sandra Rainwater is the possessor of a wild duck which she hooked Wednesday while fishing in her father's lake five miles north of here.

The duck swooped down, grabbed her bream-baited hook and fell into the water. Sandra managed to land it after a struggle.

Obituary

OBITUARY

Samuel E. Strawser, the son of William and Laura Weaver Strawser, was born in Pickaway county, Ohio May 22, 1897. Death came while he was a patient at the Dayton Veterans hospital on Feb. 22, 1952, at the age of 54 years and nine months.

In Sept. of 1918 he entered the U.S. Army during the first world war. He served in the Armed forces for about a year.

On Oct. 13, 1919 he aas united in marriage to Audrey Bowman. To this union was born three sons, Earl, of Stockton, Cal., Ralph of the Lockbourne Army Air Base, and Paul who preceded his father in death, having passed away in 1940.

Sam joined the Ringgold E.U.B. Church early in life; where he remained a member until the time of his death.

Mr. Strawser was an industrious, hard-working man all of his life. He enjoyed work, his family, his home, friends, and his church. Because of his love to be busy it was extremely hard for him during the last two years to reconcile himself to rest and leisure as physical condition necessitated. He shall be sadly missed by all of us who had learned to love and appreciate his courage and determination.

Those surviving beside the widow and two sons are a sister; Mrs. Clarence Beavers of Buckeye Lake; Three half sisters Mrs. Floyd Mast of Lancaster, Mrs. Frank Banash of Gahanna, and Mrs. Russell Fausnaugh of Circleville. And three half brotners, Robert Strawser of Columbus, and William and Charles Strawser of Circleville.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Ralph Ater wishes to extend their thanks and appreciation to all their neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness at the time of his death. Especial thanks to Defenbaugh Funeral Home and The Rev. George Troutman.

Hiram's Cagers Consistent Anyhow

HIRAM, March 6 — (AP)—Poor Hiram College: Its basketball season has ended and it STILL hasn't won a game since January, 1951.

Wednesday night's 92-88 loss to Akron was its 27th straight, and made it 18 defeats for the season.

Cook Paces CHS Cagers In Scoring

Tiger Courtman Nets 234 Points During Season

Jim Cook was top scorer for Circleville high school's Red and Black Tiger basketball team during its 1951-52 season.

Cook collected a total of 234 points for the CHS'ers this season while the Tigers posted a record of seven victories in 21 starts.

Ranking second to Cook in the scoring column this season was Dudley Morris, who connected for 198 points, while Jerry Pritchard was in runnerup spot with 144.

According to Tiger Scorekeeper Larry Hafey, Cook made 62.5 percent of his free throws this last season and 40 percent of his field goal attempts.

Morris's percentage was better for the season. The lanky southpaw dunked in 65.7 percent of his free throws while hitting for 41.3 percent of his field goals.

* * *

RANKING FOURTH on the Tiger scoring parade this season was Mike Brown, with 133 points, while Don Olney was fifth with 126 and Big Bill Gillis was sixth with 91.

Rooney was next with 78, while other Tiger scorers were John Wilkes, 33; Robin Jones, 10; Jack Pontious, five; Ronnie Bennington, two; and Walt Heine, none.

In all, Circleville cagers this season collected a total of 1,154 points, an average of 55.7 counters per contest.

Circleville's varsity crew hit for a 33.5 percent on its attempted field goals during the season, while, apparently spurred on by an offer of a special plaque for the top foul shooter, marked 54.5 percent of its free throws.

In reserve ball, Circleville's Junior Tigers were paced in scoring by Ronnie Bennington, who tallied 198 points for the season, 11.5 per contest.

Second high scorer for the reserve aggregation was Dave Greeno with 184 points, an average of 10 per game.

Circleville's basketball team will be feted by the Circleville Booster Club next Wednesday night during an informal affair in Circleville high school.

After All, It's Early For Fishing

WAYNESBURG, Miss., March 6—(AP)—Sandra Rainwater is the possessor of a wild duck which she hooked Wednesday while fishing in her father's lake five miles north of here.

The duck swooped down, grabbed her bream-baited hook and fell into the water. Sandra managed to land it after a struggle.

'HEARTBREAK HIGHWAY' FOR SURE

Mighty Hamilton Falls In District Tourney

COLUMBUS, March 6—(AP)—They call the Ohio high school tournament trail "Heartbreak Highway"—and that's what it proved to be Wednesday night for Hamilton's Big Blue team.

The Butler County powerhouse, rated No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, Class A champion in 1937 and 1949, and runnerup for the crown a year ago, was rolling along with a 20-1 record until it ran into Cincinnati Withrow.

Withrow, the Queen City's public school league champ, boasting a 17-2 record up to the crucial district tourney clash, bumped the Big Blue off the championship trail, 55-53, in a double overtime.

Alex Ellis put Hamilton out front 51-49 with 20 seconds to go in the regulation game, but Bob Work knotted it for Withrow. Ellis jammed the Big Blue ahead in the first overtime, only to have Bob Surman knot it again. They went into a sudden death overtime, and Don McDaniel scored his only field goal of the night to send Withrow into Friday night's district finals against Cincinnati Roger Bacon which has copped 21 of 23.

* * *

WHILE THE NO. 1 team in the Class A poll was dropping by the wayside, Miller City's Midgets, 1950 champions who topped the Class B voting, rolled on to their 24th win in 25 starts by handing Edgerton its second loss in 24 contests, 47 to 39, in Defiance.

Grand Rapids, the 1951 Class B champion, puts its 18-1 record against a more than worthy foe Thursday night in Fremont as it meets Castalia Margaretta. The latter school, winner of the 1932 Class B laurels, had dropped only one of 20 starts.

Waynesburg, Stark County champion and runnerup to Grand Rapids a year ago, racked up its 25th straight conquest by downing Champion, 49-36 in Kent.

Youngstown Woodrow Wilson continued to be the "surprise" entry in Class A. The Wilson crew, which won only two of 18 pretourney games, eliminated favored Niles (17-2) 44-42 Monday night, and came back Wednesday night for a 46-42 win over Salem which had broken even in 18 frays.

In Class A, 197 teams have been eliminated, but there are still 10 former champions among the 54 survivors—and the 10 have accounted for 19 of the 29 titles which have been decided. Four former Class B kings are among the 59 teams remaining from the starting field of 865.

Here are Wednesday night's scores and Thursday night's schedule:

Monroe Wins 1952 County League Cage Championship

Monroe Indian basketeers won the 1952 Pickaway County basketbal: league championship Wednesday night with a thrilling 58-51 victory over Williamsport Deers.

The Indians, winners of the county tournament title, added the league title to their collection of honors with the victory.

Leading in league standings at the end of the regular season, the Monroe team was forced to play its postponed game against Williamsport Wednesday to complete the standings.

Going into the final match of the year, Monroe held a record of eight wins in nine starts for the season. Pickaway and Darby were tied for second place with eight wins in 10 starts, making the makeup game mandatory to have a clean-cut championship for the season.

WILLIAMSPORT gave the Monroe boosters a thorough scare during the first half of Wednesday's match on the Williamsport court.

The Deer cagers opened the fracas with a 13-11 advantage over the Indians, while posting a 25-21 lead at the half.

Monroe surged back during the third frame of the contest to post a 40-39 edge over the Deers, while sweeping out in front during the final period for the 58-51 victory.

Jim Brigner was top scorer in the contest with 21 points for his Monroe aggregation, while Bob Picklesimer paced the Deers with 18.

Booster Club To Have Annual Cage Banquet Next Wednesday In School

Circleville Booster Club's annual banquet for Circleville high school's basketball teams will be held at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Final plans for the annual cage fete were completed Wednesday night during a Booster meeting in the home of President Wendell Turner.

This year's banquet will again be an informal covered dish dinner in the social rooms of the school.

Feature of the banquet will be presentation of the "most valuable player" trophy and, new this year, presentation of a plaque for the best free-throw shooter.

To receive the special plaque during the meeting will be Dudley Morris, who made 44 out of 67 free throws attempted this season.

* * *

BOOSTERS PLAN to have Paul "Bucky" Walters, Circleville native and coach of the state championship Columbus East basketball team, as special speaker for the program.

However, Boosters will first have to determine whether Walters will be tied up with activities of his team during the night.

Other entertainment for the informal program will be supplied by the "Happy Four" quartet of Morris EUB church. The group won first prize recently during the Booster Club's "talent tournament" in the high school.

To be honored during the special Booster banquet will be varsity, reserve and junior high cagers of Circleville and their coaches and cheerleaders; and junior high teams from Wayne and Washington Township schools.

During its Wednesday night planning meeting, Boosters also announced they plan to award a special plaque to the best hitter on Circleville's baseball team this Spring, while also planning to send the baseballers to an exhibition game in Red Bird stadium later.

Comiskey Bolts Chisox Meeting

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—Young Charles A. Comiskey II stalked out of his family's White Sox baseball organization Wednesday night and said he might be gone a "lifetime."

He got a job with the Liberty Broadcasting System, which recently filed court suit against most of the major league baseball clubs for $12 million. Comiskey said he would be a vice president in charge of all sports coverage. His salary is reported close to $20,000 a year.

Hoppe Is After 12th Cue Title

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6—(AP)—Willie Hoppe starts in quest of his 12th world three cushion billiard championship Thursday night. And it's pretty hard to find anyone willing to wager he won't win it.

Unofficial odds on Hoppe are even money against the field of nine others. One of them, Mexico's Joe Chamaco, won the title in 1939 and was runnerup last year.

The Dominican circular tells what the gambling money is used for. It is for culture. The profits of gambling—or part of them—are used to teach Americans to love the Dominican Republic, which is apparently free of foreign debt. Maybe gambling makes up for the foreign debt and this type of financing might be tried by some of our debtors and those who take our charity. The Ford Foundation, which is busy spending money anywhere at all, so long as it is unprofitable, might take this one on as a project.

Perhaps they could encourage all the countries that have become accustomed to mooching on the American tax-payer to get free of foreign debt by slot machines, casinos, gay nightclubs, cock-fights, Sunday horse-racing, baseball and boxing. For it is those sports which the Dominican Republic advertises as available to all who want them, along with "planned crop diversification, industrial expansion and other progressive economic and human relations developments."

It must be admitted that this is a great program for the little Republic, which compares favorably with Guatemala, Panama and Chile and such places that show less ingenuity but a great aspiration for the confiscation of American investments. Perhaps the Ford Foundation, which is a kind of private Point Four distribution center for shipping to foreign lands money earned by selling Tin Lizzies to Americans, might go into those countries to educate those foreigners how to make money without confiscating cAmerican property. They might go in for the numbers racket as a short-cut to being free from all kinds of debt, domestic as well as foreign.

I recommend the Dominican Republic's circular also to the Foreign Policy Association which recently got into the Ford money despite evidence before the McCarran committee. They might issue a wonderful research study on the subject proving that gambling is the solution to agrarian reform.

Lamotta, Hairston Battle To Draw

DETROIT, March 6 — (AP)—Jake Lamotta, the former middleweight champion, won't have to hang up his boxing gloves.

The 30-year-old fighter, showing the strain of 12 years campaigning in the ring, fought a 10-round draw with up-and-coming Eugene Hairston Wednesday night.

On the eve of the bout, Lamotta let it be known he would retire for good if the 23-year - old Hairston beat him decisively. Now Lamotta says he is going to keep on fighting. He wants a shot at Joe Maxim's light heavyweight title.

WILLIAMSPORT FALLS, 58-51

Monroe Wins 1952 County League Cage Championship

Monroe Indian basketeers won the 1952 Pickaway County basketball league championship Wednesday night with a thrilling 58-51 victory over Williamsport Deers.

The Indians, winners of the county tournament title, added the league title to their collection of honors with the victory.

Leading in league standings at the end of the regular season, the Monroe team was forced to play its postponed game against Williamsport Wednesday to complete the standings.

Going into the final match of the year, Monroe held a record of eight wins in nine starts for the season. Pickaway and Darby were tied for second place with eight wins in 10 starts, making the makeup game mandatory to have a clean-cut championship for the season.

WILLIAMSPORT gave the Monroe boosters a thorough scare during the first half of Wednesday's match on the Williamsport court.

The Deer cagers opened the fracas with a 13-11 advantage over the Indians, while posting a 25-21 lead at the half.

Monroe surged back during the third frame of the contest to post a 40-39 edge over the Deers, while sweeping out in front during the final period for the 58-51 victory.

Jim Brigner was top scorer in the contest with 21 points for his Monroe aggregation, while Bob Picklesimer paced the Deers with 18.

Williamsport's reserve team kept its season unmarred during the preliminary contest when it handed the Monroe reservists a 54-33 defeat.

Booster Club To Have Annual Cage Banquet Next Wednesday In School

Circleville Booster Club's annual banquet for Circleville high school's basketball teams will be held at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Final plans for the annual cage fete were completed Wednesday night during a Booster meeting in the home of President Wendell Turner.

This year's banquet will again be an informal covered dish dinner in the social rooms of the school.

Feature of the banquet will be presentation of the "most valuable player" trophy and, new this year, presentation of a plaque for the best free-throw shooter.

To receive the special plaque during the meeting will be Dudley Morris, who made 44 out of 67 free throws attempted this season.

BOOSTERS PLAN to have Paul "Bucky" Walters, Circleville native and coach of the state championship Columbus East basketball team, as special speaker for the program.

However, Boosters will first have to determine whether Walters will be tied up with activities of his team during the night.

Other entertainment for the informal program will be supplied by the "Happy Four" quartet of Morris EUB church. The group won first prize recently during the Booster Club's "talent tournament" in the high school.

To be honored during the special Booster banquet will be varsity, reserve and junior high cagers of Circleville and their coaches and cheerleaders; and junior high teams from Wayne and Washington Township schools.

During its Wednesday night planning meeting, Boosters also announced they plan to award a special plaque to the best hitter on Circleville's baseball team this Spring, while also planning to send the baseballers to an exhibition game in Red Bird stadium later.

Comiskey Bolts Chisox Meeting

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—Young Charles A. Comiskey II stalked out of his family's White Sox baseball organization Wednesday night and said he might be gone a "lifetime."

He got a job with the Liberty Broadcasting System, which recently filed court suit against most of the major league baseball clubs for $12 million. Comiskey said he would be a vice president in charge of all sports coverage. His salary is reported close to $20,000 a year.

Hoppe Is After 12th Cue Title

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6—(AP)—Willie Hoppe starts in quest of his 12th world three cushion billiard championship Thursday night. And it's pretty hard to find anyone willing to wager he won't win it.

Unofficial odds on Hoppe are even money against the field of nine others. One of them, Mexico's Joe Chamaco, won the title in 1939 and was runnerup last year.

The Dominican circular tells what the gambling money is used for. It is for culture. The profits of gambling—or part of them—are used to teach Americans to love the Dominican Republic, which is apparently free of foreign debt. Maybe gambling makes up for the foreign debt and this type of financing might be tried by some of our debtors and those who take our charity. The Ford Foundation, which is busy spending money anywhere at all, so long as it is unprofitable, might take this one on as a project.

Perhaps they could encourage all the countries that have become accustomed to mooching on the American tax-payer to get free of foreign debt by slot machines, casinos, gay nightclubs, cock-fights, Sunday horse-racing, baseball and boxing. For it is those sports which the Dominican Republic advertises as available to all who want them, along with "planned crop diversification, industrial expansion and other progressive economic and human relations developments."

It must be admitted that this is a great program for the little Republic, which compares favorably with Guatemala, Panama and Chile and such places that show less ingenuity but a great aspiration for the confiscation of American investments. Perhaps the Ford Foundation, which is a kind of private Point Four distribution center for shipping to foreign lands money earned by selling Tin Lizzies to Americans, might go into those countries to educate those foreigners how to make money without confiscating cAmerican property. They might go in for the numbers racket as a short-cut to being free from all kinds of debt, domestic as well as foreign.

I recommend the Dominican Republic's circular also to the Foreign Policy Association which recently got into the Ford money despite evidence before the McCarran committee. They might issue a wonderful research study on the subject proving that gambling is the solution to agrarian reform.

Lamotta, Hairston Battle To Draw

DETROIT, March 6 — (AP)—Jake Lamotta, the former middleweight champion, won't have to hang up his boxing gloves.

The 30-year-old fighter, showing the strain of 12 years campaigning in the ring, fought a 10-round draw with up-and-coming Eugene Hairston Wednesday night.

On the eve of the bout, Lamotta let it be known he would retire for good if the 23-year - old Hairston beat him decisively. Now Lamotta says he is going to keep on fighting. He wants a shot at Joe Maxim's light heavyweight title.

EVER SEE VALENTINE TREE?

Local Lass Tells Of Public School Work In Puerto Rico

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another article written for The Circleville Herald by Miss Lucille Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neal of Darby Township. Miss Neal, outstanding Pickaway County 4-H Club member, is spending six weeks in Puerto Rico under the International Farm Youth Exchange program.)

Feb. 14

"What a wonderful day. A Valentine day having a summer temperature! We were up at 6 a. m. and were all ready for the "Publico," the public station-wagon to take us to school.

"First I visited Mrs. Palmer's English class and told them about the I F Y E program, the college which I attend and my home. Another class asked various questions about Ohio State university, its acreage, its student enrollment and activities, instruction and instructors. One would think they might consider enrolling there.

"Home economics in Trujillo high school has only one room for clothing, cooking and the teachers' co-op. Here the teachers, about twenty of them, plan together for hot lunches for themselves. The pupils do not share in this as they do in our local schools at home.

"In the home economics course in Rio Piedras university, the students (180 girls) have the first year in general studies and then they transfer to home economics. They have the same clothing and foods courses one would expect plus a practice house on the campus and they must also take courses in vegetable gardening.

"This course is designed for the education of the girls who have never been on the farm. They study planting, seeding and caring for fruits and vegetables. Raising such foods makes it possible to the people to have a much more varied diet.

* * *

"CHOIR IS one of the classes taught daily. I was asked to participate, so I taught the group "The Cuckoo." Then they sang one song for me "Zum-Galli-Galli," which is a camp song for our own Ohio 4-H groups.

"This afternoon the first all-district meeting was held at Trujillo Alto district for the teachers. I don't think the St. Valentine Day has anything to do with Feb. 14 being the day set for the teachers' meeting, but they had a Valentine Tree. Did you ever hear of having a Valentine Tree?

"Mrs. Silva, in charge of entertainment, prepared a small tree and hung tiny hearts all over it. Each one went to the tree and selected a heart and read its message, then dedicated it to the one in the meeting whom it suited. More laughs!

"The Art teacher painted one for me—quite a surprise—and it was accompanied by a plastic box of candy covered almonds. I am wearing roses, a new handkerchief and more flowers. People here are so honored to meet the young continentals that they treat us as 'royalty;' they are so sincere and we love them for it.

"After school I ironed a pair of pants for the little boy, Christopher. Maybe I should say I tried to smooth out the wrinkles. You see the flat iron was new to me, again. It has been years since I have lived without electricity.

"After supper I washed the dishes. I'm not asking to do that again. Why? That sink is too very low for one of my 5' 9" Also the dish washing is very different from ours at the Neal house. In fact there is no warm or hot water used in dish washing or clothes washing. We have found hotels are the only places with hot water.

* * *

"COUNTRY STORES are every mile or so apart. The one nearest us is owned by the brother-in-law of the mother of the family with which I live. After supper four of us girls went to the store for supplies. Remember how our hucksters used to give boys and girls candy every time they came to the homes in our community—well that is about the same here. After a song by us girls and some of my newly acquired Spanish he gave us all some candy.

"After the girls left for school yesterday I decided to do my personal laundry. With a half tub of rain water from the supply tank on top of the garage and a wash board, I set to work. It is a very good thing I had very little to wash for my hands are not for that way of doing the family wash.

"This family owns two farms. They live on one and sharecroppers do the work on the other. So far, we have made one trip to the other farm. Our method of transportation? We walked, and I mean all the way. (I'll always be glad I have these old saddles with me). It is located in the second row of mountains.

"We left here by 8 a. m. and climbed with an occasional stop at a house enroute, we looked over the farm and returned by 2 p. m. (It took such a little time to come back for it was all down-grade.)

"It isn't very expensive to live here as we do. While we were visiting the University of Puerto Rico at Rio Piedras, food was the expensive item. At the next place the room and meals for the week were $14. On the farm I'm not paying, but working for my room and board.

One day the Director of Extension Hyka, Mr. Fiol, visited me here on the farm. They came by nine in the morning and stayed for two hours. Dona Tina, the home agent, and I were canning "pasteles."

You see, pulp is made of potatoes and green bananas by means of a grater. The meat used is frozen and it must be made into small cubes. It is really good food.

"The officials have visited all of us to see how we are getting along. Even Mr. Foster, our chaperon from USDA, visited us once during the week we were sightseeing and observing with the home agent. The extension department is doing everything possible to make the IFYE a success."

EVER SEE VALENTINE TREE?

Local Lass Tells Of Public School Work In Puerto Rico

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another article written for The Circleville Herald by Miss Lucille Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neal of Darby Township. Miss Neal, outstanding Pickaway County 4-H Club member, is spending six weeks in Puerto Rico under the International Farm Youth Exchange program.)

Feb. 14

"What a wonderful day. A Valentine day having a summer temperature! We were up at 6 a. m. and were all ready for the "Publico," the public station-wagon to take us to school.

"First I visited Mrs. Palmer's English class and told them about the I F Y E program, the college which I attend and my home. Another class asked various questions about Ohio State university, its acreage, its student enrollment and activities, instruction and instructors. One would think they might consider enrolling there.

"Home economics in Trujillo high school has only one room for clothing, cooking and the teachers' co-op. Here the teachers, about twenty of them, plan together for hot lunches for themselves. The pupils do not share in this as they do in our local schools at home.

"In the home economics course in Rio Piedras university, the students (180 girls) have the first year in general studies and then they transfer to home economics. They have the same clothing and foods courses one would expect plus a practice house on the campus and they must also take courses in vegetable gardening.

"This course is designed for the education of the girls who have never been on the farm. They study planting, seeding and caring for fruits and vegetables. Raising such foods makes it possible to the people to have a much more varied diet.

"CHOIR IS one of the classes taught daily. I was asked to participate, so I taught the group "The Cuckoo." Then they sang one song for me "Zum-Galli-Galli," which is a camp song for our own Ohio 4-H groups.

"This afternoon the first all-district meeting was held at Trujillo Alto district for the teachers. I don't think the St. Valentine Day has anything to do with Feb. 14 being the day set for the teachers' meeting, but they had a Valentine Tree. Did you ever hear of having a Valentine Tree?

"Mrs. Silva, in charge of entertainment, prepared a small tree and hung tiny hearts all over it. Each one went to the tree and selected a heart and read its message, then dedicated it to the one in the meeting whom it suited. More laughs!

"The Art teacher painted one for me—quite a surprise—and it was accompanied by a plastic box of candy covered almonds. I am wearing roses, a new handkerchief and more flowers. People here are so honored to meet the young continentals that they treat us as 'royalty;' they are so sincere and we love them for it.

"After school I ironed a pair of pants for the little boy, Christopher. Maybe I should say I tried to smooth out the wrinkles. You see the flat iron was new to me, again. It has been years since I have lived without electricity.

"After supper I washed the dishes. I'm not asking to do that again. Why? That sink is too very low for one of my 5' 9" Also the dish washing is very different from ours at the Neal house. In fact there is no warm or hot water used in dish washing or clothes washing. We have found hotels are the only places with hot water.

"COUNTRY STORES are every mile or so apart. The one nearest us is owned by the brother-in-law of the mother of the family with which I live. After supper four of us girls went to the store for supplies. Remember how our hucksters used to give boys and girls candy every time they came to the homes in our community—well that is about the same here. After a song by us girls and some of my newly acquired Spanish he gave us all some candy.

"After the girls left for school yesterday I decided to do my personal laundry. With a half tub of rain water from the supply tank on top of the garage and a wash board, I set to work. It is a very good thing I had very little to wash for my hands are not for that way of doing the family wash.

"This family owns two farms. They live on one and sharecroppers do the work on the other. So far, we have made one trip to the other farm. Our method of transportation? We walked, and I mean all the way. (I'll always be glad I have these old saddles with me). It is located in the second row of mountains.

"We left here by 8 a. m. and climbed with an occasional stop at a house enroute, we looked over the farm and returned by 2 p. m. (It took such a little time to come back for it was all down-grade.)

"It isn't very expensive to live here as we do. While we were visiting the University of Puerto Rico at Rio Piedras, food was the expensive item. At the next place the room and meals for the week were $14. On the farm I'm not paying, but working for my room and board.

One day the Director of Extension Hyka, Mr. Fiol, visited me here on the farm. They came by nine in the morning and stayed for two hours. Dona Tina, the home agent, and I were canning "pasteles."

You see, pulp is made of potatoes and green bananas by means of a grater. The meat used is frozen and it must be made into small cubes. It is really good food.

"The officials have visited all of us to see how we are getting along. Even Mr. Foster, our chaperon from USDA, visited us once during the week we were sightseeing and observing with the home agent. The extension department is doing everything possible to make the IFYE a success."
